

PARIS INVITES U. S. AID ON REPARATION

Separatist Revolt Is Checked By Loyalists

Republicans Maintain Hold On Occupied Towns With Great Difficulty

BATTLE OF BRAWN, MUSCLE

Loyal Germans Held In Check By Fear Of French And Belgian Bayonets

By Associated Press
Coblenz.—The new Rhineland republic is much where it was Thursday. The Separatists maintain with difficulty their hold on Aix La Chapelle, Wiesbaden, Bonn, Mayence, Duisburg, Duren and Crefeld, while the strength of their position in Coblenz, which they reentered late Thursday night, remains to be seen.

At most of these places, however, the Republicans are subjected to a sort of guerrilla warfare on the part of their opponents, requiring frequent intervention by the French and Belgian troops to restore order. Only at Thier do they seem to enjoy undisputed possession.

The Separatists also say they have occupied a number of small towns such as Godesburg, Boppard, St. Goard and Euskirchen. The city of Cologne is dependent on the latter town for part of its dairy products and foodstuffs.

After re-taking the provincial government building and post office here, the provisional Separatist government, headed by Joseph Matthes, visited Colonel Philippe, French delegate on the high commission, leaving the colonel's office. Matthes said that the Republicans had handed the Rhineland commission a declaration requesting recognition of their regime in Coblenz, promising to respect the authority of the occupation forces and to adopt a conciliatory attitude toward such inhabitants as have not yet rallied to their movement.

LOYALISTS GAIN STRENGTH

Berlin.—Reports from numerous places in the Rhineland indicate that the Separatists are waging their battle for a Rhineland republic with varied success and that local opposition by loyal Germans is becoming sturdier as the Separatists grow bolder. Regulatory fighting now extends from Aix La Chapelle to Speyer, the Palatinate having suddenly become the scene of reparation activities which are literally being fostered by the French military authorities. This is said to be in the face of native indignation and opposition to a proposal championed by local Socialist leaders that the Palatinate be constituted an autonomous state within the republic.

Fighting in the Rhineland, as reported here, has chiefly resolved itself into fist fights and the blackjacking of Separatists by their German opponents, who are being allowed to carry weapons, are making use of their brawn and muscle.

Chancellor Stresemann, in a speech at Hagen, West Phalia Thursday, said the Separatist movement in the Rhineland was against the unanimous wishes of the German inhabitants, who would have put it down speedily but for the support of the French and Belgian bayonets.

At a conference with the Ruhr and Rhineland industrial leaders the chancellor promised that the government would still give financial assistance to the occupied regions and that a provisional stable currency would be created by the Rhemish towns.

TOE TO TOE PISTOL DUEL ENDS IN DEATH FOR BOTH LONE STAR PRINCIPALS

Teague, Tex.—In a little room in a barn at Teague, in Freestone county, shortly after dusk Wednesday night, two men stood toe to toe, their left hands locked together, their right hands clutching smoking revolvers which spat bullets until neither man could summon strength to pull the trigger. Dead, with their boots on and still grasping each other, they were found.

The principals in the shooting, one of the grimmest pistol duels Texas ever saw, according to Sheriff David Terry of Navarro county, were:

Norwood Huckaby, member of a prominent Freestone county family, and Charles A. Williams, until recently a resident of Navarro county.

Huckaby was wounded four times, three bullets lodging in the cheek and one in the side. Williams was shot in the forehead, right breast and side.

Every chamber of two pistols, a .38 calibre and a .32 calibre handed clutched in the men's hands, had been discharged.

Former trouble between the two men, in which Huckaby received a bullet wound in the leg, was believed to be the motive for the shooting.

SUDDEN DEATH CLAIMS WIZARD OF ELECTRICITY

Charles P. Steinmetz Fails Dead At His Schenectady Home While At Breakfast

By Associated Press
Schenectady, N. Y.—Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, electrical wizard, died at his home Friday of a physical breakdown due to a trip to the Pacific coast, from which he recently returned.

The attending physician said breakfast was being served the patient when suddenly his heart seemed to give way and he died immediately.

The American career of Charles P. Steinmetz, A. M., Ph. D., chief consulting engineer of the General Electric works, Schenectady, N. Y., had its beginning in New York in 1899 where, penniless and able to speak but very little English, he arrived from Zurich, Switzerland. He was accompanied by a young American who had been his fellow student at the Zurich Polytechnicum.

At the time of his death Dr. Steinmetz was regarded not only as one of the foremost authorities on electrical engineering but one of the greatest mathematicians in the world. Strangely enough, one of his greatest difficulties as a child was in learning the multiplication table.

BORN IN GERMANY

Born in the city of Breslau, Germany, on April 9, 1865, and educated at his famous university, young Steinmetz early became interested in socialism at a time when vigorous steps were being taken against it by the government. An issue of a socialist publication in which the students were interested and in which Steinmetz had several articles, was confiscated, the publication suspended and the editors arrested and imprisoned.

Steinmetz fled from Germany and found refuge with a friend, a clergyman, near the Austrian border. From there he went to Zurich.

Two weeks after landing in America Steinmetz obtained employment in the manufacturing establishment of Rudolph Eickemeyer at Yonkers, N. Y., as a draftsman.

In 1892, the General Electric Company bought the electrical manufacturing business of the Eickemeyer Co., except the making of motors for elevators, which the Otis Co. took over to its own plant, and Steinmetz went to the Lynn, Mass., works of the General Electric Co. In January, 1893, he was transferred to the Schenectady works, and has since that time made Schenectady his home. In 1892, he was appointed president of the board of education of Schenectady, and in 1895, was elected president of the board of education of Schenectady, and in 1915, was elected president of the common council of that city on the Socialist ticket. He never married.

MARK PUT TO NOVEL USES BY DUTCHMEN

Berlin.—Near three tons of paper marks have been confiscated at the Dutch frontier by German officials. The currency belonged to dealers who have been doing a big trade in exporting notes to Holland for advertising purposes. The Dutch tradesmen buy them in bulk to use as wall paper and also for insertion in cigarette packages, enabling the dealers to attract sales by a 1,000,000 mark note.

Such a practice has been in use for a long time and the police now are trying to stop it.

LYDD GEORGE IMPRESSED BY HUGHES NOTES

British War Time Premier Doubts Poincare's Good Faith In Reparations

By Associated Press
Washington.—David Lloyd George, in his introduction to official Washington completed, turned his thoughts Friday to the paying of homage to the memory of the heroic dead who have contributed so much to the greatness of America.

Leaving by automobile, he arranged to go to Arlington national cemetery to place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier and to visit the last resting place of all those who have borne the shock of battle for country. Then, a visit to Mount Vernon and a like tribute paid at the tomb of Washington. Those other precincts of the nation's great, the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial were on the route of his return.

As on his first day in the capital, the program called for almost continuous activity.

FRENCH VIEW NOT CLEAR

The former premier said he was "very much impressed" by the notes exchanged between Lord Curzon and Secretary Hughes regarding reparations but that he could not express any final opinion until he knew the details of the whole situation. It was not clear to him, he said, just what the French attitude would be.

"I hope technicalities will not stand in the way," he said, adding that in his judgment whoever stands in way of settlement purely on technicalities, "deserves to lose his face." If Premier Poincare is trying to save his face and only that, he should be assisted to this end, he said, by merely want to say this is done under the reparations commission that will be all right."

Interpellation Regarding Financial Status Of Republic Causes Trouble

By Associated Press
Mexico City.—Secretary of Finance Parla appeared in the lower house of congress Thursday night for interpellation regarding the financial condition of the republic and his recent charges of financial mismanagement during the period of Adolfo De La Huerta held the treasury portfolio.

The session was very stormy. The Calles and Huertista factions in the chamber heatedly participated in the debate, while the public was in constant fear that at any moment gun play might end the arguments, as much as the deputies repeatedly pulled out their revolvers.

Deputies Arce, Prieto Laurens and Espinosa interpellated Secretary Parla finally concluding that the Mexican government cannot be considered in a state of bankruptcy and that the present muddle in its finances dates back many years.

Bathers Don't Need Suits In Santa Barbara

By Associated Press
Santa Barbara, Calif.—Bathing is the nature of the ocean beach in the evenings and early morning may become the custom in this city, as it has been discovered that the old ordinance in force in Santa Barbara does not require that bathing suits be worn at night. The law requires that suits must be worn between the hours of 6 o'clock in the morning and 8 in the evening. It makes no provision for suits the rest of the 24 hours. It has been known for some time that bathing parties have been held without suits, but it was not known that the return to ancient customs had legal backing.

Brussels Expected To Accept Suggestion For Examination Of Berlin Finances

Paris.—The French government is advising that an international conference of experts to be named by the reparations commission be called to consider the question of reparations in conformity with the treaty of Versailles.

The French government, it was said in official circles Friday morning, would be most happy, if the government of the United States would name an expert to participate in such a conference.

It was announced that Premier Poincare in the name of the French government already had informed Secretary of State Hughes that he would accept an international commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay, but that they must be named by the reparations commission. The British government, it was added, had not yet accepted this condition.

FORD FAVORS COOLIDGE BUT DRY LAW MORE

Automobile Magnate Would See President Enforce Prohibition Law Strictly

By Associated Press
Detroit.—Henry Ford favors President Coolidge but he is more strongly in favor of a strict enforcement of the Volstead act, he made it known Thursday. In a statement made by the automobile manufacturer, he asserted that he believed the President could dry up the country if he wanted to.

"If he does, I'm strong for him," Mr. Ford asserted. "The president knows it is the right thing to do. He also knows the women of the nation are going to have a lot to say if he does not act."

Mr. Ford believed that not one woman in 5,000 wished to see the former anti-prohibition days back. He also expressed the opinion that enforcement was not as slack last month as previously and gave President Coolidge credit for bringing about the change.

Reiterating his previous statement that if he were in charge of enforcing the dry law, he would call upon the army and navy if necessary to see that the law is enforced, he used Detroit as an illustration, asserting that the soldiers at Ft. Wayne could wipe up Detroit in a short time and that the psychological effect on prohibition law violators would stop further violations of the law. "Anyone who is afraid to enforce the amendment is a political coward," Ford asserted. "I never drank but I am for prohibition because I know its definite benefits."

THE PUBLICIST IN AMERICA

Mr. Lloyd George declined with few exceptions to deliver addresses in colli-siums and large halls. His representative, Sir Alfred Cope, was told by friends that Lloyd George's tour would be more effective if speeches were made to immense audiences, and that there would be no strain to the oratorical effort, as these auditoriums are equipped with sound magnifiers. Sir Alfred explained that habit would be too strong for Mr. George or any other British publicist, accustomed to appearing before audiences of a few hundred to a few thousand, and it would be impossible to resist the inclination to talk to the farthest men in the assembly.

Mr. Lloyd George found that public life in the United States is more fatiguing and wearing than in Europe. Here, long distances must be covered, and several speeches must be made in every city visited, and it is imperative to attend social functions in each place. The publicist on tour must arise early in the morning and retire late at night. Every minute of his time is taken up with meetings, speeches, luncheons, dinners, interviews, receptions. He takes his sleep in a moving train; he is not used to this, and the rest is not refreshing.
It is not amazing that Mr. Lloyd George, though a healthy and strong man, took ill after a few days of this strain, and as soon as he could, cancelled social and even speaking engagements. The long distances traversed in this country, sleeping in rocking cars and frequent lectures and receptions proved to be too much for his vigorous constitution. It is largely what we have accustomed ourselves to, as to how much we can stand.

GERMANY, THE RHINE, BAVARIA, FRANCE

Rumors have emanated from different parts of central Europe for some time that France fostered establishment of a strong, independent, Teutonic government, with Bavaria as its nucleus, in a partition of the German republic, and lately it was hinted that Marshal Foch's extended visit to that part of Europe was a secret diplomatic mission to carry out the scheme. In recent news from the Ruhr district it was insinuated that France considered a formation of the proposed Rhenish republic.

The Rhenish republic would be about as big as Belgium—lying east and southeast of Belgium—it would widen and lengthen the buffer between France and Germany. Separation of Bavaria from Germany would have the practical effect of farther prolonging the buffer. That proposition of the German people dominated by the Prussians would live in a territory included by seven or eight countries, and bounded on the north by the Baltic and North seas. The several branches of the German race proper would be isolated from Germany, as the Teutonic nations of the far North are.
These branches could not be united for military offense.

Mr. David Lloyd George gave a brief interview, in which he declared that French money was behind the Rhenish republic. "But," he remarked, "there is no reparation in that." Whether the French strategy, assuming that these con-jectures are true, is wise or not, only time can tell. Bismarck made a serious mistake in failing to construct a larger Austria of homogeneous material, just as his colleagues erred, against his warning, in annexing Alsace-Lorraine to Germany, and it was unquestionably a blunder to annex Hungary with Austria.

France may be satisfied with reduced reparations, or none, if Germany of the Prussians is looked on by unfriendly or neutral peoples. France would have allies, though they might be passive, to prevent war, allies through whose land German armies would have to march in order to reach France.

BETTER HAVE NO GUESSWORK

The American Cotton association adopted resolutions, at its convention in Columbia, S. C., objecting to the method which the United States department of agriculture pursues in estimating the acreage of cotton planting. Instead of a yearly estimate, the association requests an annual census or survey.

The department of agriculture accepts declarations of intentions of planters.
Farmers report that they contemplate planting so many acres of cotton. The department's estimate is based on these statements. The cotton association recommends that congress appropriate sufficient money to make a reliable survey every year. Each grower would be required to give an accurate statement as to his cotton acreage.

It is necessary to have trustworthy statistics as to planting. If a crop is to be so regulated that the production will be equal to the demand, or that there will not be a large surplus, growers must know how much planting is done. The acreage forebushes the production.

To obtain reliable information as to planting, and subsequently of crop condition, is not difficult. Every banker knows exactly the extent of the planting in his country. The reserve city banks collect this information from banks in the whole cotton territory, and are able to compile valuable statistics. Giving the planters, the textile mill operators, the bankers and the public comprehensive and reliable statistics as to acreage planted is a service that the government should perform. Producer, factory, buyer and consumer need this information.

HARDING'S PAPER NOW INDEPENDENT

The Marion Star, which was owned and for many years edited by the late President Harding, and which was sold shortly prior to his death has been changed by its new owners from a Republican organ to an independent newspaper.
Inasmuch as a large price was paid for this property and considerable is risked in the investment, we may take it that the new policy is the result of conscientious business and professional judgment.
In past years it has been much easier for the average publisher to run with the tide and depend upon support from a political organization that he in turn supported.
Such an attitude, however, involved so many inconsistencies that in the last twenty years we have witnessed the gradual but almost complete transition of the American press from party to independent newspapers.

The independent newspaper does not mean that it disbelieves in party government or that its purpose is to destroy party government. It merely means that the newspaper is free to support that party, those measures and those public servants which it conceives to be for the public good. The newspaper must stand the test of its integrity, honesty and judgment to a far greater extent than the politician or the party leader, for the simple reason that it exists indefinitely and must depend for its success upon the confidence of the public years and generations after the politician is gone and forgotten. The people soon forget the broken promises and fantastic proposals of politicians, but they do not forget the record of a newspaper. And the record of the truly independent newspaper is the only one that will bear close scrutiny and searching examination.

POSTURE AND THE VEINS

It is a common and I think an erratic notion that the chief cause of varicose or dilated veins in the legs is long standing, as in such occupations as cooking, motorman or communications. If persons so engaged are particularly susceptible to overstrain-ment and dilation of the veins below the level of the heart, it is rather because they assume a weak posture, the posture of fatigue and relaxation; this bad posture is as much a matter of habit and unhygienic clothing as it is of fatigue.

The cook comes by her varicose veins through vanity and slavish conformity to custom. She puts on some narrow shoes that get away with. She hangs her stockings on her calves by means of leg garters or stirrups. She hangs her skirts by means of sun dry belts and drawstrings, and thus accords the drags through the days' torture. Should the doctor advise her to pause now and then long enough to stand on her head or rest her heels on the kitchen shelf she decides he's a little unbalanced.

Perhaps man's upright posture predisposes to distension and dilation of the veins, and other parts of the veins more than it does to varicose enlargement of the veins of the legs; hemorrhoidal veins support a considerable column of blood without the aid of any valves such as are present in the veins of the extremities. But a slouchy posture habit, which means relaxation and weakness of the body muscles, more particularly predisposes to venous abnormalities and congestion in the pelvic and lower abdominal regions. A slouchy posture habit is accountable for many functional derangements which unwitting women so readily ascribe to their sex.
The pumping action of natural abdominal breathing is an important factor in maintaining the circulation and preventing distension of veins, varicose veins, spasm, stagnation, or congestion below the level of the heart.

We hold that there is nothing inherently weak about the feminine sex, that a young woman or a girl needs springs or braces no more than a man or boy needs such orthopedic apparatus, provided in both cases the physical education has not been sadly neglected. For certain invalids and cripples, such mechanical supports are of course indispensable and a great blessing. For normal persons this resort to artificial devices to do poorly the work which the muscles of the body are competent to do well if properly used, is a very common and very deplorable mistake which is certain to lower personal health, standards and defeat any aspirations to physical perfection.

Gate Posts Of Aegean Given Up Grudgingly

(From a Bulletin of The National Geographical Society.)
Imbros and Tenedos, the two islands that Greece has restored to Turkey, might be called the gate posts of the Hellespont. Imbros, the larger, is about 11 miles off, the mouth of the strait, to the northwest, and Tenedos about the same distance south.

As a matter of territory the two islands do not amount to much. The greatest length of Imbros is 17 miles and its greatest width nine miles.
Tenedos is scarcely three miles long and two broad. But at the entrance to one of the most important sea channels in the world their strategic value is great.

Greece gives them up reluctantly because they constitute a sort of Hellenic Alsace-Lorraine. There was great rejoicing when they, with other Aegean islands, came once more under Greek control as a result of the World war after centuries of Turkish ownership. A partial compensation for the return of Imbros and Tenedos to the Turks is that for the Aegean islands, many of them larger and intrinsically more valuable, remain Greek territory.

The two sentinel islands of the Hellespont figured in Greek history from hundreds of years before Christ.
Pericles planted one of his queer garrison like colonies or cleruchies in Imbros. Tenedos was one of the most loyal members of the Delian league; the last recorded event in the history of that pre-Christian League of Nations was a gift of money in $40 B. C. from Tenedos to Athens.

FIDDLER RISES TO FAME
Paris, Mich.—For 50 years folks around here have reckoned that Jasper Bisbee was a "right fair fiddler."

But it took a stranger to realize the significance of asper's fiddling reputations, and at the times he coaxed out of his homemade instrument.
That stranger was Thomas A. Edison.

Edison happened to be here on his recent camping trip
with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, when he met Bisbee. The old veteran's rendition of "pieces" that were popular half a century ago impressed Edison so that the inventor arranged to have the fiddler's tunes reproduced on phonograph records.

Bisbee won many a fiddling championship in these parts during his 50 years of life here, but aside from a neighbor who moved to Tennessee, hardly anyone outside of Mecosta county knew his name.
Now Bisbee expects his fame to spread out beyond his home town, his country and even across the ocean.

Q. Please give a description of
of the Shell Room in the Berlin Palace? M. L.

A. The Shell Saloon is in the New Palace at Potsdam, formerly the summer residence of the Emperor. The walls and ceilings of the room are inlaid with corals, crystals and rare shells. The friezes are minerals and precious stones, many of which are of great value.

Q. How many Senators have been President of the United States? R.
E. P.

A. No Senator, except the late President Harding, has gone directly from the Senate to the White House.
Garfield was elected President while Senator elect, but had not yet taken his seat. The Presidents who were Senators previous to their election are as follows: James Monroe, Senator from Virginia; John Q. Adams, Senator from Massachusetts; Andrew Jackson, Senator from Virginia; Martin Van Buren, Senator from New York; Wm. H. Harrison, Senator from Ohio; John Tyler, Senator from Virginia; Franklin Pierce, Senator from New Hampshire; Andrew Johnson,
Senator from Tennessee; James A.
Garfield, Senator from Ohio; Benjamin Harrison, Senator from Indiana;

Ohio. Former President McKinley served in the House of Representatives previous to his being elected governor of Ohio.

Q. Is there a distinction between the use of the word "verbal" and that of "oral"? C. E. M.

A. Verbal, coming from verbum meaning word, is often incorrectly used for oral. Verbal applies to both spoken and written words, while oral applies to spoken words only.

Q. Are lemons picked before or after ripening? R. T.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that lemons are never harvested after they are ripe. They are picked as soon as they have attained a certain size and they are usually as green as the leaves on the tree.

Q. Where was Daniel Boone buried?

Soaring Costs Halt Building

(John Oackwood, in Forbes Magazine) Unsettlement in the building industry has been brought on years before its time by a premature stoppage in effective demand.
Ordinarily a stage of unsettlement develops in a highly active business movement which marks the approach of equilibrium between supply and demand. It may run into a period of depression if the momentum of activity on the production side is so great as to create a condition of oversupply.

This is not the case in the present building situation. There still remains a great building deficit. There is nothing like an approach to an overbuilt condition. There is yet a huge volume of unsatisfied demand.

If costs, as a result of the present unsettled situation, are promptly adjusted to maintain effective demand at a large volume, a more drastic reaction in the building and allied trades will be avoided. Speculative operations which were rampant in the spring, have been largely frightened off but wage conditions still persist.

It cannot be too often repeated that labor will serve itself best by maintaining steady employment at a reasonable wage over a period, than by exploring to death the opportunity extract opulent returns for a shorter period.

The former more temperate procedure means the accumulation of homes, savings accounts and other blessings that flourish thrivly under the nurturing influence of steady employment.

The latter course, always productive of personal and class extravagance, may mean automobiles for wage earners today but the breadline of business depression of an early to-morrow.

Teacher Has Hero Part In Home Play

Clement Kerechum, one of the new teachers at Appleton high school will be the hero of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," which is being produced by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bannister at Appleton theatre on Monday and Tuesday evening. The proceeds from the play will go to Appleton Women's club building fund. The reserved seat sale will begin Friday morning at Bell's Drug store.

Kerechum takes the part of Tom Cunningham, a rich man's son, who is in love with Margaret Simpson, the heroine of the story, played by Miss Lucille Meusel. Cunningham is elected dictator of the party which is located in a Virginia sanitarium by a quarantine.

One of the most interesting romances of the play is that of Molly Kelly, played by Mrs. Joan Enrie, Jr. and happy Johnnie Hicks, played by Harry Oates. This couple pursue love through many difficulties but eventually find blissful happiness.

The marriage of Louise E. Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Mason, 424 College-ave. and Edgar P. Schommer, son of Mr. N. C. Schommer, 951 Seventh-st. was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Mary church. W. J. Fitzmaurice performed the ceremony.

Mrs. James W. Hubbard of Chicago, sister of the bride was matron of honor.

Herbert Schommer, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Little Marjorie Hall, niece of the groom, was flower girl.

During the ceremony Miss Marie Schommer, the bridegroom's sister sang several sacred songs. Dr. W. J. Frawley of Appleton and Mr. Jas. W. Hubbard of Chicago were the ushers.

The altar was decorated with palms and baskets of yellow chrysanthemums.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played on the pipe organ the bridal party approached the altar. The little flower girl scattered rose petals in the path of the bride who was on the arm of her father. She was given to the waiting groom at the altar steps.

The bride was attired in brown chiffon velvet trimmed in gold metal lace. She wore a picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of Ward roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The matron of honor wore capton crepe, a picture hat and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

The flower girl wore corn-colored cotton crepe, lace trimmed and a poke bonnet of the same shade.

A wedding breakfast was served in the gold room at Hotel Appleton to immediate relatives and a few friends. The table and room were decorated in autumn colors and baskets of yellow chrysanthemums.

FARMER THOUGHT BARN WAS AFIRE

Herbert Farrand Summoned
Help When Forest Fire
Smoke Enveloped Farm

Special to Post-Crescent.
Black Creek—Farrand's excitement was caused here Tuesday evening when he called to Mr. Herbert Farrand, who lives on a farm near the dense smoke in the forest. Farrand was on his way to call on a neighbor to help him. He had difficulty in reaching home on account of the dense smoke. Upon investigation it was found the barn was not on fire. Mr. Farrand lives on the former Albert Huse farm.

Chicken thieves who operated here about midnight Monday probably will be identified definitely through a resident of Nichols who works at Black Creek. This man was on his way home at midnight and saw a truck starting at the roadside about a mile north of the village. It was loaded with chickens. He took a description of the vehicle.

It is believed the truck contained stolen poultry because one farmer west of here missed 40 chickens, 12 geese and two others have been robbed, one of 25 and the other of 40. One of these farmers also has his suspicions as to who the thief is.

COW IS KILLED

William Kasten of Twelve Corners is missing a cow as the result of the animal's untimely death. It was pushed with a milk stool after which it fled, upsetting a pail of milk as it ran. The cow slipped on the wet floor and fell, breaking a leg. One bone penetrated the flesh. It was necessary to shoot the injured bovine.

A valuable horse owned by John Volkman may recover from an illness which was expected to be fatal.

Leo Schultz of Woodstock, who has had a crew of men working in the Koshong cut has returned home. The crew has finished grading and a new track will be laid in a few days.

KAUKAUNA GRIDDERS PLAY NEW LONDON

Kaukauna—New London high school football team will be the opponent for the Kaukauna squad Saturday afternoon in the last home game this season. Coach McGrath's first year team with the high school team has not turned out as successfully as was hoped, the team having won only one game thus far. The boys are in shape, however, to give the best fight of their lives in the last test to the boys of New London.

Most of the first interest in the school is centered in the fact about the coming game with Appleton high a week from next Friday at Appleton. It is understood that a large crowd of a miracle will test Appleton but there is no doubt that the Orange and Black will put up a fight exceeding anything it has ever given this season. Even the College City team shows toward Kaukauna, the entire game will fight with utmost determination to make Appleton work for every touchdown.

CHAUTAUQUA AT LEAST PAID WAY

Little Likelihood That Kaukauna Will Have Another Program Soon

Kaukauna—The Mutual Brawl Chautauqua in Kaukauna this summer paid its way as a result of a plan adopted by the guarantors' association, making all backers responsible for the sale of 10 season tickets. All expenses of the chautauqua have been paid and accounts of the guarantors checked, leaving a balance of $10.50 to be turned over to Kaukauna post of the American Legion.

The cost of the five day program was $1,100. The only other expenses were $4.50 for printing and $5.50 for postage. Sale of season tickets netted $265.50 while money taken in at the door of the tent added $295.40.

Efforts of the chautauqua superintendent to secure a contract for next season shortly after the performance in July were futile and it is quite probable that the city will not have another chautauqua for a few years.

POSTMASTER LOOKS OVER RURAL ROUTES

Kaukauna—Postmaster A. R. Mill is making his semi-annual inspection of the rural mail delivery routes this week. He makes a trip with one carrier every day. The purpose of the inspection is to see that mail boxes of the farmers conform to requirements. The department is urging that all rural mail boxes and the posts to which they are attached be painted white. They not only look neater than but are more easily seen by the carrier. Boxes should be on the right side of the road and close enough so the mailman does not have to leave his conveyance. Patrons are promptly notified of any irregularity in their boxes and are asked to remedy the defects.

Maple Creek Pioneer Remembers When Bears Raided Farmers' Yards

Mrs. Herman Nass, Still Strong And Hearty, Came To County When It Was Wilderness

BY W. F. WINSEY
"I often wished when I saw deer in early days tasting vegetables in our garden, eating hay at the stacks, and bounding away when frightened over logs and fences that I was as dainty, as pretty, as graceful and as fleet-footed as they so that I might keep company with them in their movements," said Mrs. Herman Nass, one of the pioneer women of the town of Maple Creek, Outagamie-co., to the writer recently.

"For years after we came to the town of Maple Creek," continued Mrs. Nass, "bears were so plentiful in the woods, on the roads and about the farm buildings that we never ventured out at night for fear they would have difficulty in returning. In summer I often met bears picking berries in the patches near our home, seen them working in the corn fields, and lambing along the trails and roads, and the sight of one always threw me into a panic of fear. Occasionally they stole pigs from our pens at night and took them off we often caught sight of a bear lugging a pig off to the woods."

"We often heard wolves howling at night but I never saw one. I was very much afraid of Indians but saw only a few. A tribe would occasionally move up or down the river but they only bothered us when the squaws would come to the door to beg pork."

CAME IN 1865
Mrs. Nass was 10 years of age when with her mother and father, Frederick Stolt and wife, she arrived in 1865 at the log cabin of Daniel Brass in the wilderness of Maple Creek. The Brass cabin was on the farm now owned by William Frank.

When the Stolts reached Milwaukee the keeper of the hotel in which they passed the night, advised them not to go to New London as that settlement was on the outskirts of civilization, was inhabited only at times by roving tribes of wild Indians and was no place for white people.

While they were looking for a location, the Stolts were entertained two months by the Brass family. At that time a little log shanty could be seen here and there in a clearing of two or three acres each, in the woods. Passing these, the Stolts selected for their future home the 50 acres now owned by Ferdinand Knapp.

Neither Mr. Stolt nor his sons knew how to use an ax, to fell a tree, to build a long shanty, to plant crops or to drive oxen. Luckily for the family in this unfortunate ignorance, Mr. Stolt found an expert in these lines, a willing instructor, and a ready helper in the person of Ferdinand Knapp's father who lived near at hand.

He taught the Stolts how to chop, clear land, plant and harvest crops, but more important than all, he helped them roll the logs of their first shanty into place.

HIGH LIVING COST
The Stolts brought with them from Prussia all the bearings and clothing needed for years and $1,000 in cash to tide them over the critical period in a new country. And it was well they did.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains, Yru or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day. Also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaker then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is warm you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delicious effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. adv.

MRS. HERMAN NASS

made these provisions, since it took them a long time to force a living from the soil and flour was selling at $10 a barrel in New London, calico at 60 cents a yard and other necessities of settlers were equally high.

In clearing the land, the mother and girls helped to pile and burn the brush, and to plant and harvest the crops. The first crop raised on their new land by the Stolts was potatoes, planted with a grub hoe between the roots of stumps.

In Prussia, not far from Berlin, Frederick Stolt, the father of Mrs. Nass was a shepherd before he emigrated to America. His business was to supervise seven men in the care of 3,000 sheep. When Stolt had reached the culmination of his success as a shepherd, two things happened that changed his occupation, shifted his residence from Prussia to the miles of Maple Creek and revolutionized the placid course of his life.

DOGS KILLED SHEEP
One of these things was that dogs killed 90 of his best sheep and the owners charged their loss to carelessness of Stolt and the other was that Mrs. Brass in Maple Creek, a sister of Mrs. Stolt, had been inviting the Stolts to come to America. As the Brass family were about to retire, she said in her invitations, they would give her estate to the Stolts if they would come and take possession.

In two weeks after the dogs did their work, the Stolts were in Bremen, ready to set sail for America. After a voyage of 12 days, they landed in New York on July 4, 1865. At that time the boys of the Nass family were returning home from the battlefields of the south.

WEEPS FOR SOLDIERS
Mrs. Nass, then a mere child, says she distinctly remembers that her mother, who had been accustomed to the grandeur and well-groomed condition of the Prussian soldier, wept when she saw the ragged and tattered condition of the army that had thronged the rebellion of the south and saved the United States from dissolution.

From New York to Oshkosh, the Stolts made the trip by boat and rail, from Oshkosh to New London by boat, and from New London to the Brass farm by lumber wagon.

When she was 18 years of age, Miss Stolt, the subject of this sketch, was married to Herman Nass who owned the farm heavily cleared, now owned by Robert Frobenius. They soon sold out, however, and bought the farm now owned by Fred Rhoda. After occupying the latter farm for a few years, they again sold out and bought the farm Mrs. Nass now owns.

WORKED IN FIELDS
Besides doing her housework, Mrs. Nass has always been a persistent worker in the fields. She raked hay by hand in early days, did the loading on the wagon, and the mowing away.

Her husband tended the grain and she bound it. And such work as hoeing, weeding, planting and hauling corn and digging potatoes, she always did in season.

When she could not do her housework in the day time because of the press of outside duties, she did it at night after supper and the chores were done.

With all her work in the house and in the field, Mrs. Nass has reared a family of 15 children, all living, the girls all married, and boys all become successful. William, Gustave, Otto, and Richard, living in the state of Washington; Lorena, California; Mary, Oregon; Silvia, Spokane, Herbert, Flint, Mich. Grover at home with his mother, Ella, Appleton, and Esther, New London.

THE FOOL The dramatic sensation of a generation will be presented to Post-Crescent readers as a novel. It is the story of a young man of wealth who undertook to live, literally, in accordance with the New Testament's teachings. He lost fortune, love, social standing, almost life itself in pursuit of an ideal. Did it pay? "The Fool" thought it did. The reader who follows this story will be able to judge for himself. The original play The Fool - By - Channing Pollock Starts Serially In The Post-Crescent TODAY No more remarkable story ever has been offered our readers. We urge you to read the first installment today and follow it to its gripping end.

Wanted-Your Decision on Points Common Brand Motor Fuels Wadhams True Gasoline Liquid Greasy, sluggish, with a marked kerosenish smell; slow to evaporate. Rubs clean and "dry" between the fingers like alcohol; quick evaporation and no kerosene odor. Vaporization Wet and heavy; resists carburetion; enters combustion chamber only partly vaporized. Vaporizes completely because of its inherent gaseous nature; no wet or unburned clinkers. Compression Heavy, unbroken particles tend toward being condensed or squeezed back into unburnable liquid on the compression stroke. Compression has no liquefying effect on Real Gasoline, because Real Gasoline vaporizes completely, and thoroughly mixes with air. Ignition Wet, heavy make-up smothers the spark, firing slowly and reluctantly; renders starting difficult. Real Gasoline reaches for the spark, ignites instantly; makes quick starting. Explosion Internally broken into a series of puffs and flareups at the beginning of the stroke; dying into dull, incomplete burning at the end. Gappy, jerky and inclined to miss. A true explosion. Complete instantaneous combustion; unbroken flame-travel resulting in a steady progression of power clear to the stroke's end. Residue Excessive carbon deposits; pitted valves and carbon crusted piston heads; unburned kerosene trickles down cylinder walls and dilutes lubricating oil. Burns completely; no free carbon to steal power; no kerosene to dilute and weaken lubricating oil, leaves your motor clean. Price Supposedly low in first cost, but overpriced considering both cost of production and real fuel value as compared with the higher qualities of Wadhams Gasoline. Price fairly based on actual cost of production with legitimate profit margin; higher by the gallon but lowest per season. Net Result Rough driving; hard starting; excessive discharging of the battery; crank case oil dilution; quick-gathering carbon deposits; jerky, missing, battering explosions; slower acceleration; poor all-round performance. Full mileage per gallon; smooth, pleasant driving; minimum of carbon; easy starting; oil protection; longer battery life; a clean, willing motor; sweeping economy in motor upkeep costs, and at the end of a given period a motor whose better condition will bring you a bigger re-sale price for your car. $5,000,000 HOME BUILDING SOCIETY FOR NEW LONDON

Building And Loan Association Started To Help Home Builders

Organization of a building and loan association, with a capital stock of $5,000,000 has been effected at New London. Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state in Madison and directors have been elected. Officers are to be named as soon as the charter is approved. About $27,000 of stock has been subscribed by approximately 50 persons. Every effort will be made at once to dispose of said stock so that a building program can be carried out in the spring. A campaign to sell stock on the installment plan is to be started in the near future. The new association will do business through all three banks in New London. It is said a great need exists in the city to provide help for prospective homebuilders because of the great shortage of homes. Incorporators of the new association are Thomas G. Roberts, Fay R. Smith, H. B. Christy, M. C. Traylor and M. W. Knapstein. Directors are Ben Hartquist, F. L. Zaig, W. E. Mitton, J. J. Burns, Henry Hamilton, M. C. Traylor, Fay R. Smith, Fred W. Krause and H. B. Christy.

TAG DAY WILL END S. A. DRIVE HERE

The tag day on Saturday will complete the Salvation Army appeal campaign in this city. The report of the amount of money collected will be made in a few days, but it is certain that it is far from the quota which was assigned to Appleton. Subscriptions of those who were not solicited may be sent to M. A. Schuh, treasurer of the Salvation Army fund. No other solicitation of funds is sanctioned by the Salvation Army during the year except the street corner solicitation. A generous response in the tag day appeal is expected.

REPORT TONIGHT ON STOVE PLANT

A detailed report on the Triumph Stove & Heater Co. Milwaukee, and its product and possibilities will be presented at the next meeting in the council chamber of the city hall at 7:30 Friday evening by the citizens' committee entrusted with investigation of this proposed new industry for Appleton. Action will be taken on the report and stove then will be taken to give the company the assistance it needs in starting a plant here to make stoves and furnaces. The meeting is open to all Appleton people who are interested in the city's expansion through establishment of new industries.

STUDENTS FILE OUT OF HIGH SCHOOL IN 2 MINUTES

The slowest fire drill since the opening of school took place at Appleton High school on Friday morning when the building was emptied during the assembly period in two minutes. When the entire assembly room is filled with upperclassmen and the freshmen are in their session rooms, is the worst possible fire hazard time at the school, but the building was emptied in two minutes. By careful management of drills at this period, Lee C. Rasey expects to cut down the record by several seconds. The students from the assembly room make their exit at the main door, but in future drills part of the assembly room students will be directed to other doors.

BOYS TAMPERING WITH FORD AROUSE NEIGHBORS

A series of explosions at the corner of Meade and Northside early Thursday evening brought the people from their homes for several blocks around. The pranks of some neighborhood boys had caused all the excitement and considerable damage to a Ford truck which had been parked near the corner. The boys had started the engine of the truck, retarding the spark and advancing the gas lever until the engine continued to back fire, causing the noise which the residents took to be explosions. The water in the radiator became so hot that it shot into the air in spurts and the engine became so hot that it smoked. The entire truck was enveloped in a cloud of smoke and steam before the driver could be located. He stopped the engine and found that the exhaust pipe was so red hot that it was almost in a molten state.

INSTALL NEW SCALES FOR CITY WEIGHMASTER

New 20-ton scales are to be installed at once at the city service station at the fair grounds. Louis Watson commenced work Friday morning on the concrete foundation. While this work is in progress, Joseph May, city weighmaster, will have his headquarters at the office of Balliet Supply company, whose scales will be used by the city until the new ones are installed and in working order. The old scales were of 15-ton capacity and had been in use for more than 50 years. They were formerly located on Market-st, now Soldiers square.

JOE SCHOMISCH HAS BEEN BARBERING IN APPLETON 40 YEARS

Joseph Schomisch will celebrate his fortieth anniversary as a barber Saturday, Oct. 27. He came here from Stockholm when 20 years old and learned his trade with Otto Starbom, whose barber shop at that time was located in the frame building on Walnut-st immediately north of Peterson & Rehben's meat market. After working for him for seven years he entered into partnership with him and the firm continued in existence until his death 15 years ago, since which time he has conducted the business alone. Mr. Schomisch has been in his present location for 35 years.

I SPIED TODAY

CATS AND DOGS

I have been to the circus and have seen fierce looking lions ride horseback. But the wildest ride I ever saw took place Wednesday afternoon when our neighbors' cat rode a strange bull dog who has been prowling around for some time. He spied Miltie's dish of dinner and started to eat, when the cat made one leap onto his back. The dog seemed stunned for a second until the cat started to claw him. The dog made one dash with the cat hanging tight. The cat was gone for some time but came back without any scratches so she must have been a winner. She has taken up her favorite spot on the back porch watching her dish and waiting for Mr. Bulldog to come back.

WHY NOT MOVE THE PORCH?

"I love her in the springtime I love her in the fall But last night on the back porch I loved her most of all."

And it also disturbed the neighbors the other night down in the First ward.

A lady who lives on Allen-st was terribly frightened because of the presence of a man about the garage. When assistance was called, the officers found that it was the neighbor's maid and her beau spooning out near the garage. The back porch was too close to the house but he loved her just the same.

IMPROVE EACH HOUR

Tuesday night as I was going to the vocational school, I spied two people trying to pass their time quickly, while waiting for some one from the school. I saw a lady in a sedan crocheting. I also saw a boy in another car reading. I don't suppose they like to sit idle, so they bring something along to pass the time more quickly.

BUILDING PERMITS

Construction of another new residence was certified Thursday by Robert M. Connelly, city engineer and building inspector. A total of 203 home building permits have thus far been issued between March 20 and Oct. 25. Building of ten other homes had started before the new zoning ordinance went into effect last March. In addition to the permit mentioned, two other building permits were issued for the erection of private garages. The value of all construction to date is $1,647,513.

Following are the persons to whom permits were issued Thursday: William Fish, 1011 College-ave, addition to garage. Henry Koester, Main and Munro-sts 2-car garage. William and Bess Steenis, Washington-st. residence.

Applications for building permits for the construction of residences are becoming more and more scarce as winter and the close of the building season are approaching. Yet houses are still being built. Wednesday another such permit was issued. It was the 292nd of the season. Construction authorized up to Wednesday evening amounts to $1,644,213.

Following are the latest permits: Mrs. E. Turkow, 1132 Eighth-st. dormer at rear of house. A. B. Lohrenz, Tonka-st residence. John Ruwoldt, 754 Superior-st. garage. Ralph Rasching, Mason-st. chicken coop.

ONE DETOUR ON CAR ROUTE TO MADISON

Only one detour between Appleton and Madison will be necessary for motorists who drive to the homecoming football game in the state capital on Saturday. Construction work has not been completed between Beaver Dam and Columbus and a detour of four miles is necessary, unless it is decided to open the road temporarily. The detour is fair in dry weather but very slippery after rain. The detour is near the city of Columbus and only about two miles of road is closed.

NO REDUCTION IN COST OF BUILDING

Labor Leaders Predict Even Higher Wages In Some Trades

There is no likelihood of reductions in the cost of building labor in Appleton in the immediate future, according to a survey compiled by S. W. Straus & Co. The report is based largely on data gathered at the convention of the trades department of the American Federation of Labor at Portland, Ore., at which $50,000 organized building craftsmen of the country were represented. "The attitude of labor as expressed in reports and statements by leaders of organized labor indicated that in some trades still higher scales can be expected," the survey says. "All building labor is employed at present. The number of apprentices is increasing rapidly. The advent of these apprentices is expected to be a factor in stabilizing wages within the next two or three years."

"It was urged in the interest of the entire industry that building activities be kept going normally rather than endeavoring to make up the present building shortage through abnormal activities over a short period. The hope was expressed that the efforts of the industry be concentrated on home building."

Minimum wage scales in the building trades on the eight-hour basis, as submitted to the convention, showed that labor is getting the highest wages in history. Bricklayers throughout the country are receiving from $1 to $1.50 a hour; carpenters, $5 cents to $1.25; plasterers $1 to $1.50; building laborers, 25 cents to $1.10; structural iron workers, 75 cents to $1.37 1/2; plumbers, from 50 cents to $1.50; lathers, 70 cents to $1.52 1/2; electricians, 70 cents to $1.25; stone cutters, 50 cents to $1.00. It was stated moreover, that many workers are receiving bonus payments of $1 to $4 a day in addition to the regular wage scale.

VAN WYK IS DISTRICT HEAD OF ODD FELLOWS

Appleton Lodges Included In Nineteenth District In New Apportionment

At the meeting of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows at Fond du Lac last June Wisconsin was divided into districts and Konenick and Rhine lodges of Appleton were placed in the nineteenth district with Neenah, Menasha, Stockbridge, Manitowoc, and Kaukauna.

At the first district meeting in Appleton Monday evening, Richard Van Wyk was elected president and Joseph Koffend, Sr., treasurer. Charles G. Wings of Kaukauna was selected as secretary.

A series of quarterly meetings was arranged, the first of which will be held in Appleton during the early part of November. It will open with a supper and will conclude with a program. Members of all the lodges in the district will be invited.

The object of these district meetings is to give members an opportunity to become acquainted with each other and to discuss matters pertaining to the order. The state was divided into districts for the first time about ten years ago, but after the first year very few district meetings were held. The old district to which Appleton belonged included Neenah, Menasha and New London.

PLAN FOR EVERY MEMBER CANVASS OF TRINITY CHURCH

Preparations for the every member canvass of Trinity English Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon, will be made at a meeting of 30 men of the congregation Friday evening. It is planned to form 15 teams which will visit every member of the congregation. The canvass is expected to raise sufficient money to meet current expenses of the church and for its benevolences.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Eucasia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

AIR BLAST RIPS TIRE OFF CAR AND SENDS IT SPINNING FOR 300 FEET

An explosion on Oneida-st north of the railroad track Thursday halted pedestrians and brought people to their doors and windows in time to see the tire of a Ford car go spinning along the pavement for nearly 300 feet. The inner tube which was torn into fragments lay where it fell. The driver stopped his car promptly, picked up what was left of his tire and proceeded to a garage for repairs.

TO LOOK PRETTIER END CONSTIPATION!

Constipation is often a cause of pimples, unhealthy complexion, dark rings around the eyes, fatigue, nervousness and irritability. And one of the chief reasons this condition is allowed to exist is because so many women dread to take harsh cathartics that pain and gripe and often leave the more constipated than ever when the drug effect wears off.

Rid yourself of this handicap! Win back the flush of youth and beauty—the health and charm of schoolgirl days. Take a good vegetable tonic such as prescribed by Dr. H. S. Thacher and now used by thousands of women to help correct constipation without gripe—to improve digestion—to nourish the system—to soothe and ease tired, overtaxed nerves—to build up the system and put on firm, healthy flesh and send purer, richer blood coursing through every channel.

Try just a spoonful of Dr. Thacher's after the next few meals. Notice the quick difference in the way you eat, sleep, look and feel! If you are completely satisfied your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Dr Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup TONIC

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

IMPORTANT TO GET GENUINE CAR PARTS

Wolter Company Points Out Need For Care In Replacements On Autos

The recent results of a long series of tests in automobile manufacturers' laboratories indicate the danger to owners in using anything but genuine parts in such service replacements as may be necessary.

For example, in Dodge Brothers laboratory at Detroit a test was recently applied to rear axle shafts. The genuine Dodge Brothers axle shafts withstood six complete turns in the test for normal counterfeits while the test for normal counterfeits withstood only 1 1/2 turns. In testing steering knuckle bolts—the genuine bolts bent double without breaking when put under given pressure. When the same pressure was applied to counterfeit bolts, they snapped with out exception showing brittleness and defective core.

In the opinion of the Wolter Imp. & Auto Co., the Dodge Brothers' dealers' such tests show very plainly why it is the best policy for motorists to depend upon service stations approved by the factory building their car, for any service parts that may be required for such replacement work as may be necessary. It is only here that parts can be guaranteed as being genuine parts.

Automobile manufacturers build their parts for service work as well as they know how because it is absolutely necessary in order to maintain the car owner's good will.

All car owners should realize the extreme importance to them of always getting genuine parts. If repairs or replacements of parts become necessary it is worth having done in the most capable manner by an established place of business which has the stamp of approval of the manufacturer back of the car.

It is evident from the expressions of buyers and prospective buyers that a decided improvement has been made in the riding qualities of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars. No one who calls at the salesrooms to inspect a new line misses an opportunity to sit in the deep and roomy seats and comment on their exceptional comfort. The seats and body are considerably lower than before, not only adding to riding ease, but affording much more leg room.

The good Maxwell Club Sedan is a strongly built, spacious enclosed car, devoid of extravagance; it provides full room for five passengers—not merely seating space for five, but complete comfort. The forward chairs are wide. Driver and passenger are comfortably seated in a restful and easy position. The rear compartment is of standard sedan size with more than ample leg room. The cushion is deep and is otherwise of generous dimensions. Instead of being cramped for room, rear seat passengers in the Club Sedan know the meaning of roomy, restful travel.

The single door on either side of the car is of unusual width. A door of such ample dimensions permits of easy entrance and exit, and also gives completely unobstructed vision from front compartment passengers. Further to facilitate entrance and exit, the chair seats have been built to tip forward, so that an absolutely clear passageway is presented at the threshold.

The upholstery is of granite weave cloth in heather mixture. It not only adds to the beauty of the interior, but is extremely durable. The manner in which the cloth is laid over the cushions and back rest is patterned after the style of upholstering found in custom-type vehicles. The rear seat and back rest are done in pillow trim of three panels. Another feature of the custom builder is noted in the top. The whole is exposed to view and finished in walnut. This construction produces an effect pleasingly different from the conventional lined top. The body is finished in black with a distinctive panel of red on the doors.

All side windows of the Club Sedan may be easily raised and lowered. The door windows operate by a crank, and the rear windows by a notched latch arrangement. These windows, together with a cowl ventilator and a windshield which may be easily adjusted, offer unusually excellent control of ventilation.

The Club Sedan also embodies hidden virtues of even greater importance. The construction of the car conforms to the best practice employed in the building of fine closed bodies. Metals and lumber are of the highest quality for motor coach use. Other details and specifications follow the high standards which have been set in building all the other Maxwell enclosed cars, now so favorably known and so widely accepted by motor car buyers throughout the world.

BUICK GETS AWAY IN FASTER TIME

Increased Capacity For Speed Is One Reason For 4-wheel Brake

The Buick Motor Company does not always have so marked an improvement as the four-wheel brakes to offer the public each season, yet it develops its car in such a manner as to anticipate the performance of that car in the hands of owners. So Buick cars this year will get away from a mark faster than any previous Buick cars could do because of the improvements in their mechanism; they will attain a greater maximum speed than ever before. Therefore, it is logical to have a better braking system than any car has ever had before, and Buick has it.

Other makers and dealers will not admit this, nor can we blame them. They have their own cars to sell. But the public knows it, and that is enough for Buick. When you stop to think that the only thing that stands in the way of progress in the development of the airplane today is the factor of safety—the inability to stop when and where you wish—it is easy to understand the public attitude and the public sense. The motorist's need today is for more control of his car, in crowded traffic, on country roads, and on treacherous turns and grades. Buick supplies that need.

TRY IT OUT
The answer is in the car itself. The motorist's feeling is that he should be posted on any advancements that are made. He will try them for himself. If he finds them satisfactory, he will buy them; if not, there is no harm done.

This line of reasoning has been a boon to Buick. It has induced motorists to investigate other cars than the Buick, as well as the Buick itself. The result has been that for twenty years there has been a steady development in Buick engineering and a steady growth in Buick sales. There has been no lagging in the Buick engineering department and no failure in keeping in touch with the needs of motorists' service. Right now at the height of his career, Buick has introduced a score of notable new features and thrice that many minor improvements, which take in everything from the engine to the design and finish of its fourteen beautiful bodies.

Never has the Buick car been so good an investment as it is today, because it is more capable, more comfortable and more safe than ever. And for that very reason it is attacked by other interests which have been less successful in giving the public what it wants. The motorist well knows that if he wants the finest type of Valved-in-Head motor, he will find it in the Buick. He knows that if he wants a wide range of selection in body types, Buick supplies it. He knows, too, the beauty and comfort of these excellent cars, and the reliability that has been a Buick asset for twenty years. And he knows that Buick service is without an equal.

PROGRESS IS TEST
Well on its way toward the two-million mark in production, Buick is firmly entrenched as the Standard of Comparison in performance, in beauty, in comfort and in safety. This position is one that has been given to Buick by the public by the sincere tribute of buying Buick cars in preference to other makes. It is a hard-earned position and one which is so precious that Buick would never consider any action which would endanger it.

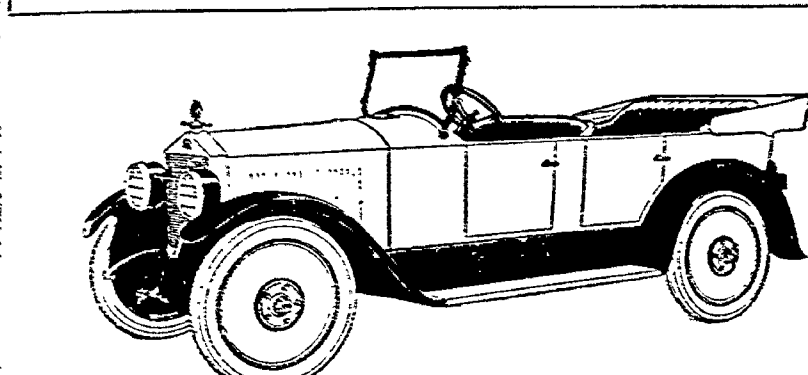

Motorists, after twenty years, know that this is true. They know that when Buick introduces an improvement it is a tried and proven one, with a definite need for its inspiration and with an application that is fine because it is practical. Any effort on the part of less successful interests to detract from such a reputation is a burlesque which the public views with a sense of humor. Like all publicity which does not have truth as its basis, it has the opposite effect from the one for which it is designed. In this case, it is calling attention to Buick's strongest selling points and is no doubt playing its part in the tremendous sale of Buick Valved-in-Head motor cars in every section of the country today.

SWING TO LIGHTER CAR MORE MARKED

How rapidly the trend of sentiment is swinging toward the use of lighter motor car equipment, in order to more satisfactorily meet present day traffic conditions, is emphasized in the tremendous increase in sales of the Ford Motor Company for the first three quarters of the present year. An analysis of these sales shows that the sentiment is not alone among passenger car buyers but extends to commercial car purchasers who are finding that the smaller motor haulage unit effects more efficient, speedy and economical delivery service.

Sales of Ford cars and trucks in the United States for the first nine months of the year total 2,354,000. It is just announced. This is an increase of 461,433 over the same months of 1922. In September alone, 141,467 Ford cars and trucks were delivered at retail, a gain of 35,025 over September last year, while truck sales for the month were 15,947 or 4,539 more than in the same month a year ago, including fall and winter. 4-WHEEL BRAKES WILL PROVE WORTH

This Equipment On Car Is Outgrowth Of Traffic Problem In Motordom

BY C. F. KETTERING
President General Motors Research Corporation

Every great invention in every age changes the conditions of living and readjustments under the new order must then be made.

Rapid growth of the automotive industry has resulted in a traffic problem, which the development of good roads is gradually solving, but while this desirable relief is being brought about, an even more vital problem is presenting itself—the problem of safety. This the industry itself must solve, if it is to continue to prosper.

The automobile's traffic toll must be lowered. The traffic problem may take years to solve, but the safety problem must be solved now. The demand comes from every state and every community. A solution gradually being adopted by motor car manufacturers is the installation of four-wheel brakes. This is another step forward in increasing the safety of the automobile for driver and for pedestrian alike.

We have already built ample power into our cars—also ample speed. And because of power, acceleration and speed, the necessity of adequate control has come to the front.

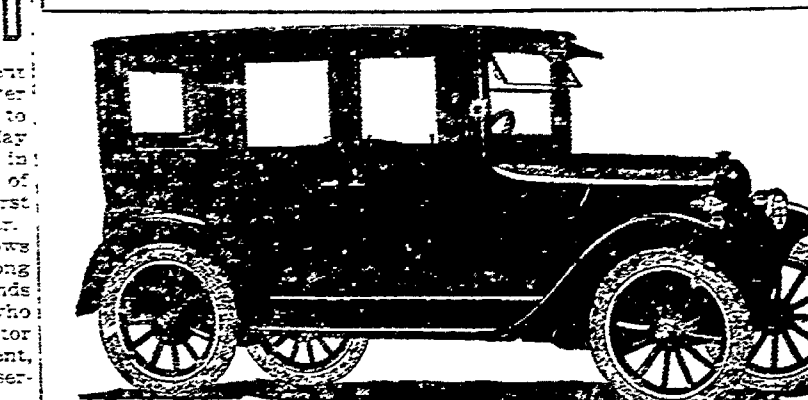

Four-wheel brakes are by no means new. A very large number of the basic patents on four-wheel brakes have already run out, and an American car with brakes on all four wheels was exhibited at the New York show as long ago as 1909. In Europe, the majority of motor cars have for years had four-wheel brakes and have fully demonstrated their merit. To the American who has traveled abroad, brakes of this type are anything but a novelty.

There is nothing intricate about four-wheel brakes. They are simply more or less of a duplication of the two-wheel brake principle, applied to the front wheels as well as to the rear ones. Their effect is to increase the factor of safety to a considerable extent. That their use is based on thoroughly sound principles is demonstrated by the fact that all electric and steam cars, both passenger and freight, carry brakes on every wheel, while the newer types of steam train passenger cars carry double brakes on every wheel.

If it is necessary and wise to put brakes on all wheels of steam and electric cars which run on a restricted line of steel rails, how much more necessary and wise it is to place them on automobiles that travel in traffic that is congested with both cars and human beings. Four-wheel brakes for automobiles are already being welcomed by police departments and safety committees in every large city as a great step forward in making traffic safer. Some insurance companies have already offered reduced rates on cars equipped with four-wheel brakes.

DORT SALES CHIEF LAUDS CALIFORNIA

Mansfield Says Prosperity Is Booming Throughout Pacific Coast State

California has something more to talk about than the climate this year because it is about the most prosperous spot in the whole country," says J. D. Mansfield, general sales manager of the Dort Motor Car company, who recently returned from a trip to the west coast.

"Just as long as the East produces wealth California, and more especially Southern California, will get its share, because it is still the only playground in the country. Consequently, improved conditions in the East have stimulated the tourist business in the West.

"California industries are in fine shape. Public utility corporations are reporting great earnings. In the north, the ranching and fruit farms are bringing in tremendous revenues. In the south, the citrus crop is heavy and there is, at the present time, great oil boom which is attracting considerable wealth.

Plates For Batteries Are Like Bridges

J. J. BURKE
Langstadt Meyer Co.

Between batteries and bridges—or batteries and fighting masts—any relationship would seem impossible. Yet in the famous Diamond-Grid Plates of the Philco Battery the same fundamental engineering principle is employed to obtain maximum strength. Every car owner knows or should know that the life of his battery—whether its last him six months, two years or five years—depends on the life of his plates. And their life in turn depends on how long they can stand the constant punishment of day-in, day-out service.

A battery plate, as you perhaps know, consists of a framework of lead—called a grid—on which is pasted the active power-producing chemicals. The grid really serves a double purpose—a support for the chemicals and a conductor for the current.

Every time you throw on the starter, these grids in your battery are subjected to a tremendous shock—the result of violent chemical action in the plates. And every time your car goes over a bump there's an addition to the shock.

The ordinary battery plate contains what is known as a bar grid—that is it is made up of a series of perpendicular and horizontal lead bars crossing at right angles. That means they are braced in only two ways, horizontal and vertical. A strain or shock from any other direction meets little or no resistance. That's why buckled, twisted, warped, and short-circuited plates are so frequent in ordinary batteries.

Now take the famous Diamond-Grid Plates of the Philco Battery. They are buttressed—not in just two directions—but in every direction against

FORD LEADER AS BUSINESS WIZARD

"Father Of Trusts" Picks Ten Who Lead Nation In Industrial Way

By Associated Press
New York. Who are the 10 greatest business men of America contributing most to the public service?

The question was put to Charles R. Flint, widely known as the "Father of Trusts," friend and confidant of all the big business leaders of the past century, who at 73 has just written a book on his unique career, "Memoirs of an Active Life."

"Henry Ford is the greatest business wizard of history," says Flint. "What heights he will reach cannot be foretold."

"People used to be suspicious of trusts and hated them. I acted as organizer in forming 21 industrial consolidations, which have often been confused with 'trusts.' I think the public has now come to believe that industrial consolidation is really brought about for the benefit of the consumer."

"Ford has done the same thing individually as a large industrial consolidation has done, reducing manufacturing and distribution costs by similar methods."

Flint, who drives his own silver to his Wall Street office, says Ford is great because his product "has gone far to prevent class distinction in America."

"Industrial managers of today," he says, "have arrived at the age of wisdom. Their public service is in standardizing quality and in creating low prices to the public through tremendous volume and quantity production."

"That's the test of a business wizard. Rockefeller was the first; then came Carnegie. But of living Americans I would put Ford first, and Rockefeller second. They are both in the one-man-trust class, though Rockefeller later added to or absorbed other companies after setting up individually the same kind of production organization that Ford has more recently created."

"Schwab is third in the list because he has been the greatest steel master in standardizing metal production. I would put fourth a man not so well known—George F. Johnson, president of the Endicott-Johnson Company, whose contribution to the shoe industry is comparable to that of Schwab in steel, J. Ogden Armour in meat, and Earl D. Babst in sugar. Armour, head of the packing firm of Armour & Company, and Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, are fifth and sixth on my list."

"I would put seventh another man with whom the public is not generally acquainted—Thomas J. Watson, president of the Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company, because his business machines which seem actually to think, are saving millions in systematizing office work."

"Eighth, ninth and tenth are men who in their fields have done work similar to Schwab, Johnson, Armour and Babst; these are William H. Wellington, head of the cotton textile firm of Wellington, Sears & Company, Charles A. Coffin, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, and George Eastman, president of the Eastman Kodak Company."

Flint gave his list of business wizards to NEA Service in an interesting amplifying view in his forthcoming book, on changing conditions in business. He pays a tribute to the intelligent cooperation of labor leaders, adding:

"The evolution of industrial progress has now reached an advanced stage where its continued development must be through industrial consolidation; these facts are being generally realized by wage-earners."

"This is the great lesson of economics: The more easily each of us can produce the more there will be for each of us—of goods and leisure."

Flint, though himself the organizer of the chewing gum "trust," admits in a chapter of his book that William Wrigley is the greatest single business success in America, resulting from advertising—which, in one case at least, won in competition with an industrial consolidation.

As merchant, banker and industrial leader, Flint has had a career that requires 45 lines to summarize in Who's Who. His office walls are covered with autographed pictures of world-famous men of two generations. He is active and looks 15 years under his age, though his hair and close-cropped whiskers are gray.

shock and strain. No buckled plates, no short-circuiting. Everywhere you look—on bridges, derricks, scaffolding, trestles—in all engineering work where maximum strength is demanded—you will find this diamond form of construction. Engineers the world over recognize it as the strongest type.

But superior strength is not the only advantage of the Diamond-Grid Plate. The framework is double latticed to lock the active, power-producing material on the grid. That means the front and rear bars of the grid are staggered—made to cross each other—thus holding the active material tightly in place.

Demand for ammonium sulphate for fertilizer is growing rapidly. During five months nearly 7,000 tons of it were shipped from River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company to all parts of the United States. It is a by-product of coke, carries from 20 to 21 per cent available nitrogen and is known as one of the world's best commercial carriers of that element.

NOVEL TOOL KIT ON NEW REO CARS

No Need To Turn Passengers Out Of Seats To Get At Needed Equipment

A comparatively simple refinement, yet one destined to bring a lot of comfort to the motoring public, is the side-entrance tool compartment built under the front seat of the new Reo Six five passenger touring car.

For years the necessity of clearing the front seat of passengers, struggling to remove the seat, and struggling again to replace it has confronted the motorist every time he has had need of any one of the countless tools and instruments carried in this compartment. Yet there was no place which could be used more conveniently.

That was before Reo designers, in their ceaseless search for the refinements which have been the backbone of Reo development during past years, hit upon the idea of locking side entrances for this heretofore inaccessible storage space.

Because of the wide doors with which the Reo models are regularly equipped, it was possible to provide good-sized entrances to the tool compartment, one on each side. These have been fitted with well-built doors and the doors are in turn fitted with locks which give positive protection to the contents of the compartment.

Now the former bugbear has become a real comfort. More usable space is obtained through the new method of gaining entrance, and room may be left in the compartment for storing small packages while the car is parked.

The front seat passenger is no longer disturbed when it becomes necessary to get into the compartment under the seat, and the struggle with cushions is a thing of the past.

NASH FOUR SEDAN WINNING BUYERS

Embodies Every Feature Required For Performance, Comfort And Equipment

It is not strange that the Four Sedan should have won so extensive an acceptance, for it embodies every desirable enclosed car feature in both performance and equipment. Purposely Nash built it lightly yet the method and manner of its design and construction are such that it possesses extraordinary strength and solidity. This model seats five people graciously and agreeably and even in case of the doors the width is well calculated to relieve entrance or exit of any hint of awkwardness. The color tone of the car is of Nash blue and black, thus achieving both smartness and dignity. From above a dome light illumines the interior and rests offer reposeful ease for the arms.

Warmth is supplied by a heater, and a windshield wiper is included among conveniences for the driver. Loomed in the world's most famous mills, the upholstery of mohair velvet is invitingly luxurious. Along with these gratifying features is the practical economy with which the sedan travels. In truth it needs but little more gas and oil per mile than is usual among open cars similar in size. At this point we can dwell for a space in the intensively developed efficiency of the braking system. Given greater power the brakes take hold with tremendous strength and though you stop quickly there is a delightful smoothness to the operation. In common with all other Nash models the Sedan is built almost in its entirety in Nash shops so that Nash standards keep the manufacturing practices at the highest level. After a close inspection we suggest you view the car from a distance in order to take in the symmetry and grace of its shapely design.

JEWETT FINDING BROUGHAM SCARCE

Model Is So Popular Dealer Has To Clamor Hard For Enough To Meet Need

The popularity of the new Jewett Brougham is evidenced by the inability of distributors to get cars of this model, according to Mr. Chas. Herrmann of the Herrmann Motor Car Co.

"Every time we have asked the factory for a bunch of ten or twelve, we received one or two," states the Jewett dealer. "In some cases prospective owners of the new Brougham will wait several weeks before we can give delivery."

"The lasting lustre given by the high laked enamel finish yet with the body sheathing on a hardwood frame, at an open car price slightly more than the special touring car has made the new Jewett Brougham a complete success."

The new factory of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, to be devoted exclusively to the production of the Jewett Six is being rapidly rushed to completion, according to officials of the plant.

With the exception of installation of machinery which is now underway, only the depressed railroad tracks for which the excavation has been made beside the receiving platform remain to be laid.

All of the concrete flooring has been laid. The entire driveway platform, adjoining the freight loading docks has been surfaced and made ready to receive great quantities of machinery which will later be placed in the new plant.

The building proper which has had three acres of glass used in its construction has been divided into its various departments. In the finished car departments, the rollers for testing completed Jewetts have been installed.

It is expected that all machinery will be installed in order that production may start in the new factory before the first of January.

PAPER MAKERS ARE WORKING ON PLAN OF REFORESTATION

Millmen Of Three States May Combine To Outline Program

By Associated Press
Madison—Plans for a conference of manufacturers of Wisconsin and probably Minnesota and Michigan to outline a program of reforestation and fire prevention are being considered as a result of a meeting of paper and pulp manufacturers at Wausau this week where a state association was organized. Elmer S. Hall, state director of conservation, stated today. The conference of manufacturers will not be held until early next year, it was said. It will be at some northern Wisconsin city, under temporary plans. Eighteen papermills in Wisconsin were represented at the Wausau conference, which was sponsored by the American Pulp and Paper Manufacturers' association. Methods for launching a forest conservation campaign were considered. D. C. Everist, of Rothschild, was elected president of the association which was formed. Paper mill manufacturers are coming to realize that there is great need for a campaign for conservation and fire prevention. Commissioner Hall said. It is because of this that they favor a conservation program.

What kind of communication will we have thousands of years hence? Of course, wireless will be developed almost to perfection, but will we still have to write letters to one another? And telegrams? And will we still use the telephone?
An inkling of a solution is suggested by H. G. Wells, famous British novelist, in the latest product of his imagination, "Men Like Gods."
In this an inhabitant of the earth finds himself suddenly in another world, a Utopia, where the people are supposed to be thousands of years advanced. In his wanderings about this new planet the Earthling has occasion to notice the means of communication. Crystal, one of the Utopians, puts him into use, and Wells goes on to describe how.
"Crystal carried a little bundle of wires and light rods and present he comes to a place where a pillar stood in the midst of a lawn he spread this affair out like a long cat's cradle and tapped a little stud in the pillar with a key that he carried on a light gold chain about his neck. Then he took up a receiver attached to his apparatus, and spoke aloud and listened and presently heard a voice.
"It was a very pleasant woman's voice. It talked to Crystal for a time without interruption, and then Crystal talked back, and afterward there were other voices, some of which Crystal answered and some which he heard without replying. Then he gathered up his apparatus again."
This the Earthling learned was the Utopian equivalent of letter and telephone.
NO WRITING
"A message is sent to the station of the district in which the recipient is known to be, and there it waits until he chooses to take his accumulated messages. And any that one wishes to repeat can be repeated. Then he talks back to the senders and dispatches any other messages he wishes."
The transmission, of course, is wireless.

Engineer, Right, Doesn't Want To Appear Wrong

Robert M. Connelly, city engineer, is an obliging man. Rumors had been afloat conveying the information that Mr. Connelly "had been caught violating the city zoning ordinance and was compelled to make a change in the construction of his garage."
When confronted with the rumor, the city engineer smiled and expressed his doubts on the subject of compulsion, as well as that of violation. He admitted that a change had been made and that the change had cost him considerable expense.
Mr. Connelly has had a new residence erected on Bellareot. He had also begun the construction of a garage on the lot line and at the extreme end of his lot. Then came objections to the building of the garage which, according to the zoning ordinance, must not be built less than six feet from the lot line. It was pointed out.

HOME TOWN WILL HONOR F. R. DUFFY

Fond du Lac is planning a rousing reception for F. Ryan Duffy, former commander of the Wisconsin Department of the American Legion, when he returns Saturday night from San Francisco where he was elected vice president of the national legion. A band, heading a parade, will greet the veteran at the depot and escort him to the courthouse where he is to give an address.
Mr. Duffy has been a frequent visitor to Appleton where he is known. It is probable that an effort will be made to elect him national commander of the legion at the next annual convention.

"The little pillars," explains Wells, supply electric power for transmission or for any other purpose the Utopians require. For example, the gardeners resort to them to run their mowers and diggers and rakes and rollers.
This is a rather flighty bit of imagination, but who can tell how far we may progress with the remarkable steps we have already taken in this direction?

CITY ATTORNEYS OF STATE UNITE FOR BATTLE WITH BANKS

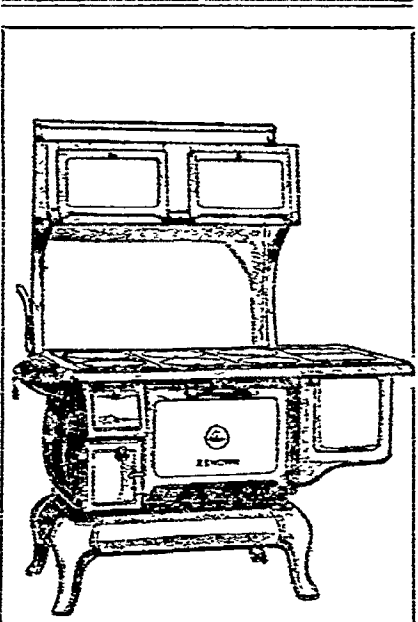

Expect National Banks Will Test Constitutionality Of Law

A conference of city attorneys from various parts of the state took place Thursday in the office of John M. Niven, city attorney, of Milwaukee. The convention was attended by Appleton's city attorney, Theodore Berg.
The meeting was called to discuss the new state law pertaining to the taxing of banks. A concerted legal battle is expected from the banks of Wisconsin, and the city attorneys are preparing to meet their action. Those in attendance besides those mentioned were Thomas E. Lyons, chairman of the state tax commission; Walter J. Mattison, assistant city attorney of Milwaukee; John B. Flemming, Eau Claire; Fred Merrill, Green Bay; Roy G. Cunningham, Janesville; T. L. Mcintosh, Superior; Robert A. Edgar, Beloit; and L. E. Larver, Fond du Lac.
The congressional law was amended this spring to make possible the taxing of national bank stock by states. The state legislature then enacted a law to conform with the new federal law. Bankers contend that the United States law is too vague and will not hold water. They also maintain that the state law is unconstitutional because it does not authorize taxing of consumers in competition with banks. Bond brokers and building and loan associations are mentioned as competitors of banks. Tax officials, on the other hand, maintain that bank deposits are the greatest source of money-making and it is this feature which distinguishes a bank from so-called competitors.

15 Traction Company Veteran Employees To Be Honored At Banquet

Men In Service More Than 20 Years Will Be Entertained At Hotel Pfister On November 3

Fifteen veteran employees of the Wisconsin Traction Light, Heat and Power Co. will be honored guests at a banquet for employees who have been in the service more than 20 years at the Pfister hotel in Milwaukee on the night of Nov. 3. The North American company, which now controls the traction line and the utility plants here, gave these banquets annually for its veterans.
The program includes a special greeting for the Appleton men inasmuch as this is the newest property of the company. The veterans will be introduced and a response will be made to a message of greeting.
ORGANIZE E. M. R. A.
It is also probable that preliminary steps will be taken at this meeting to organize an employees mutual benefit association among employees of the traction company here. This association will be similar to those among other employees of the North American company.
To Julius Martin, a gas fitter, goes the distinction of being the oldest employee in point of service with the company. He boasts of 46 years in the traction company's employ.
Other veterans who will attend the banquet are the following:
J. W. McCarter, 25 years, chief engineer at power plant.
Frank Bommer, 25 years, electrical repair man.
J. W. Stark, 26 years, master mechanic.
R. F. McGilgan 25 years, conductor.
Mike Quinn 25 years, conductor.
George W. Lausman, 25 years, utility man.
T. J. Byrnes 25 years, motorman.
George Mensinger, 25 years, motorman.
Charles Reith, 25 years, motorman.

BUS DRIVERS KEEP AWAY FROM CORNER

Belief Tri-City Company Will Abide By Police Parking Regulation

Theodore Berg, city attorney, is making an effort to induce the Tri-City Transportation company to keep its Neerah and Menasha motorbuses out of the forbidden parking space at the corner of Collegeave and Appleton St. By parking the busses close to the street corner, they conceal the aerial highway sign and obscure the view of motorists who would cross the street.
The city attorney several days ago mailed a notice to A. C. Rohman, proprietor of the bus line, informing him of the police regulation prohibiting parking close to the street corner, but he has as yet received no reply.
Busses were observed parking at a greater distance from the street line on Friday morning which gave the impression that the bus drivers in future will abide by the regulation.

The winners will be considered champions until the next tournament, or so long as they can defend their title. It is claimed there will be no regulation as to hours for the younger boys tonight.

INSULATION IS GOOD WAY TO GET RESULTS FROM GAS

Smithsonian Institute Expert Tells How To Keep Down Gas Bill

This is the second of a series of articles on how to keep down the fuel bills. The third will appear soon.

Insulate your gas oven.

It will give you the same service with about one-half the gas and at greater comfort to the cook.

This is the advice of S. S. Wyer of the Smithsonian Institution here, who declares that $2,000,000 worth of fuel is being wasted every day in the United States.

The principle is the same as covering your furnace with a heavy coating of asbestos. This, he says, will give you a better heat and at less cost.

Coating the gas oven with asbestos or other insulating material will keep the heat in the oven and will cook the food instead of cooking the cook.

Here is some other information about gas that Mr. Wyer hands out:

Artificial gas is man-made by transmutation of crude, dirty, inert coal into energetic gas. Natural gas is made by nature and is transmitted to the consumer in its natural state.

HEATING VALUES

The heating value of natural gas is about twice that of manufactured gas. Because of its higher thermal value, natural gas requires twice as much air for combustion as is required by the other; otherwise the two gases are handled just the same in the home appliance.

Natural gas does not have a distinctive, offensive odor like manufactured gas and this makes the detection of leaks more difficult.

Large volumes of gas, to be burned, must have some of the air mixed with the gas before it reaches the flames. The cooking range has a mixer, which permits the air to be sucked in by the aspirating action of the gas.

The air shutter must be adjusted until a clean blue flame is produced. A yellow flame with this type of burner is an indication of waste.

BURNERS

Grid or open-top stoves are desirable for good service so as to get the most direct path for the heat from the flame into the food.

Many natural gas cook stoves have solid tops and burners as far as three and a half inches away. This is wrong. Such stoves always waste gas and frequently will not give any service when the pressure is low. The flame tip should just strike the bottom of the cooking vessel to get the highest efficiency. To do this, the burners should be only one and one-fourth inches below the vessel.

Natural gas appliances should always be adjusted for low pressure only, and only low pressures—one to two ounces—used. This saves gas and gives better service during the inevitable low pressure conditions when the demand is greater than the supply.

Flues are always desirable on gas room heaters and gas water heaters. If the burners are not correctly adjusted, carbon monoxide gas may form and an adequate flue is good assurance against accident.

Radiant or radiant fire heaters should never be operated so the radiant glow more than three-fourths of the distance from bottom to top.

Never use gas in any coal-burning appliance; it will always be wasteful.

Drama Girls Sell Tickets For 2 Plays

"The Remancers" and "The Knave of Hearts," the two one-act plays which Appleton Women's club dramatic workshop is working on will be produced in the Playhouse on Nov. 15. Tickets for the plays are being sold by members of the club and the proceeds will be used for the equipment of the stage in the Playhouse.

It is possible that the program will also include two groups of songs by the upstate club. This is the first program of this kind this year. "The Knave of Hearts" is being produced by the dramatic workshop at Smith college as one of its first plays of the year.

CAR TIPS OVER IN DITCH. DRIVER ESCAPES UNHURT

An August Brandt company Ford sedan was partly wrecked when it ran into a ditch on the Kimberly road at 9:30 Wednesday morning and turned over on its side. The driver, George Mavis, crawled out of a top window on the side that was uppermost. He escaped uninjured with the exception of a few scratches. The accident occurred about one and a half miles from the city on the Kimberly road on the south side of the Fox river. Two mail boxes were damaged before the car plunged into 3 1/2 feet ditch and landed against a telephone post.

LEGION OFFICERS PLAN FOR DRIVE

American legion post commanders, adjutants and membership chairmen of the 33 posts in the North congressional district will meet in Green Day at 10 o'clock Sunday morning to make plans for the membership drive. L. Hugo Keller, who is state chairman of the campaign, will be among the speakers.

James H. McGillan has called a meeting of officers of posts in Brown county before the general meeting. The purpose of the county meeting is to take initial steps toward the organization of a county council.

MILL MEETING PROGRAM SHOWS VALLEY PRODUCTS

The program contained in the envelope carried a printed message of welcome in various mills of the Fox river valley, and the kind of paper and bottom of the page of that particular name of the mill was printed at the variety. The covers were made from Pulp & Paper company's pulp.

One envelope also contained a coupon book containing tickets for automobile rides to the mills, women's tickets to Lawrence-Cornell football

WISCONSIN TAXES 179 PER CENT OVER 1912 COLLECTION

Public Debt Of State's Subdivisions Growing As Rapidly As Taxes

BY BASCOM N. THOMPSON
Special to The Post-Crescent
Washington, D. C.—The hungry maw of the tax-eater has now reached out to tax almost everything possible for the support of government. In Wisconsin, figures released today by the Census Bureau showed.

Since 1912 taxes in Wisconsin have increased 179 per cent, the statement showed, a total of $127,839,540 being gathered in by tax collectors in 1922, or an average of $47.45 for each person in the state.

This huge total was divided as follows: General property tax, $104,178,452; special property taxes, $11,230,429; licenses and permits, $5,733,421; special assessments for improvements $3,657,302.

Here are some percentage gains in taxes in the Badger state in the ten year period from 1912 to 1922:

General property taxes 179 per cent; special taxes, 229 per cent; licenses and permits, 53 per cent; special assessments, 118 per cent.

And while taxes piled up in the Badger state, the debt also was pyramiding. In 1922 the entire debt for Wisconsin and its political subdivisions, less the sinking fund assets, set aside to meet such debt was $195,522,551 and in 1912, $19,097,643, or an average per capita of $35.81 in 1922 and $10.56 in 1912.

But in the matter of debt the state itself showed a small decrease—one fourth of one per cent—in the gain in debt coming from counties and subdivisions. The state debt in 1922 was $2,161,000 compared with $2,251,000 in 1912.

County indebtedness increased from $4,101,000 in 1912 to $29,478,000 in 1922, or 619 per cent.

Debts of subdivisions, including cities, towns, villages, school districts, and drainage districts increased from $33,715,000 in 1912 to $23,850,000 in 1922, or 115 per cent.

The assessed valuation of all property subject to general property taxes was $4,266,885,516 in 1912 as compared with $2,460,635,793 in 1912, an increase of 69 per cent. The per capita assessed valuation increased from $1,015.31 in 1912 to $1,537.02 in 1922. The per capita tax levy increased from $15.23 in 1912 to $36.96 in 1922.

The statement today also showed some interesting comparisons with the past in assessed valuation and tax levies as follows:

Assessed valuation of all property, 1922, $4,165,556,000; 1912, $2,466,635,793; 1902, $1,504,346,000; 1890, $495,303,000; 1880, $153,946,000.

Per capita assessed valuation of all property, 1922, $1,537.02; 1912, $1,015.31; 1902, $705.27; 1890, $203.86; 1880, $203.66.

Assessed valuation of real property and improvements, 1922, $3,318,060,000; 1912, $1,728,426,900; 1902, $1,128,377,000; 1890, $344,780,000; 1880, $145,239,000.

Tax levies of general property taxes, 1922, $29,559,000; 1912, $36,843,000; 1902, $20,502,000; 1890, $7,583,000; 1880, $2,339,000.

Per capita levy of general property taxes, 1922, $36.96; 1912, $15.23; 1902, $9.61; 1890, $5.77; 1880, $3.

Average rate per hundred of assessed valuation, 1922, $2.39; 1912, $1.49; 1902, $1.36; 1890, $1.57; 1880, $1.25.

GET FIRE RISK VERDICT ON NEW OIL HEATING PLANTS

Residents who are installing oil burning heating systems should take care to have the system approved before installing, according to George E. Peotter, deputy building inspector.

Unless oil burners for furnaces and other heating plants have the sanction of the fire insurance underwriters, no indemnity in case of fire can be claimed. It is said.

Before anyone has an oil burner installed in a heating system, inquiry should be made at the building inspector's office where complete information on the subject will be unparted free of charge.

Explorer Was First To Prove White Man Can Live Off Land In Frozen North — Finds Blond Eskimo Race

Tickets now may be obtained at the chamber of commerce office for the lecture at Lawrence Memorial chapel Nov. 8 by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, America's foremost explorer, on "The Friendly Arctic." They will be placed on sale at several stores also, but these will be announced later.

The sale already has begun in earnest in other cities as well as Appleton. One letter from Green Bay contained a request for 12 seats and enclosed a check in payment. Inquiries from other places also are being answered.

All pupils of the schools of the county will be urged to attend the Stefansson lecture, for it will be the opportunity for them as well as other hearers to gain in one evening what it would take them days to assimilate from books concerning the frozen north, its life, condition and possibilities.

Few people have any conception of life as it is lived in the far north. When Stefansson made his announcement in 1913 that he intended to prove to the world that white man could live off the land in the frozen north, everyone thought he was demented. But he accomplished the feat and returned after five years with a fund of knowledge, pictures and experiences which he uses in his lectures for the enlightenment of the people of this far northern land.

On his two previous expeditions he made careful studies of the Eskimos and discovered the so-called Blond Eskimos, who have figured so largely in the newspapers since. Because of his studies of this race, because of his discoveries of land and because of the application of new ideas and new methods of exploration, Stefansson is now considered the foremost explorer of the present day. He has been honored by geographical societies of several nations and given honorary degrees from prominent universities of this country.

Stefansson is a brilliant and successful writer, and is the author of a number of books and many magazine articles. The "Northward Course of Empire" and "Hunters of the Great North" are his latest books and "The Friendly Arctic," an earlier publication, is one of his most popular. In his lectures Stefansson does not tell only of his experiences in the Arctic, but of the ideas he has gained from these experiences. In the past few years his mind has turned from exploration into the broader channel

Calumet Baking Powder is called "Best by Test" because actual baking tests are made right in the big Calumet factories—the largest of their kind on earth. Master bakers and a renowned domestic science expert make these tests which protect the quality and uniformity of Calumet.

Calumet is called "the World's Greatest Baking Powder" because it is used by more housewives—more chefs—more railroads—more restaurants—more hotels than any other brand.

Calumet is called the "Economy Baking Powder" because no other brand on the market will produce bakings at such a low cost. Its dependable and unflinching action means no loss of time, money or materials.

Calumet is called for in thousands of stores daily because a better leavener cannot—and is not made—because a large can contains full 16 ounces and some brands come in 12-ounce cans—once tried it is always used.

TEACHERS GUESTS AT HI-Y PARTY

Thirty-seven teachers of Appleton high school were entertained at a reception at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening given by members of the Hi-Y club. The guests were well cared for by the boys who looked after their every comfort even to providing automobiles to take them to the Y. M. C. A. and home again.

The early part of the evening was devoted to getting acquainted. Harold Zuehlke delivered an address of welcome and this was followed by stunts and games. "Rhapsody Vaseline" a burlesque on a movie actor whose part was assumed by Harold Zuehlke, was the feature of the evening. Others who assisted in the stunts were Harlan Smith, Alan Harwood, Carl Thompson and Carl Engler.

One of the games that aroused a great deal of interest was the identification of trademarks.

Of bringing to the attention of the world the vast potential possibilities of the North in it he sees a land that will produce great wealth both in food and minerals, a land as full of promise as the West of the early days.

BLAINE AIDE LIKES APPLETON AD IDEA

Kuehl Tells Corbett General Publicity For State Is Permanent Method

The Appleton plan of community advertising holds favor in the eyes of the state with respect to a campaign to advertise Wisconsin, according to expressions contained in a letter addressed by Frank W. Kuehl, secretary to Governor J. J. Blaine, to Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Corbett proposed to Gov. Blaine and a state publicity committee appointed by the governor, than any movement to advertise Wisconsin include its industrial, agricultural, educational and other features as well as the lakes, hunting, fishing, scenery, good roads and recreational attractions.

Mr. Kuehl says in part: "I think you are entirely right that permanent returns must be based on an appeal to more than the tourist."

Mr. Corbett submitted his views after the Wisconsin Land o' Lakes association virtually had decided to raise $50,000 for advertising of the tourist attractions only. His declaration give the state committee the benefit of a study made when a plan was in contemplation to advertise the Fox river valley nationally. Community promotion plans from all over the United States were investigated before the valley committee made its report, with the discovery that permanent support for publicity is not possible when only one group reaps the benefit.

Miss Catherine Cosgrove has returned from a three weeks trip through the eastern United States and Canada.

MISSING GIRL IS SOUGHT BY POLICE

Fond Du Lac High School Student Disappeared Aug. 26, From Her Home

By Associated Press
Fond du Lac — Police of the state and private detectives have begun a search for Agnes Broome, 17 year old high school girl of this city, who has been missing from her home since Aug. 26.

Her parents received a telegram from her a few days after she disappeared saying she had been married to Harold Baker of Tomahawk, Wis. Wednesday Baker denied the report he had been married to the girl. "I knew her only slightly," Baker said, "and after investigation found that she was tired of her home and started out to find employment. Her first stop was Tomahawk. She remained for one day and later left for Chicago."

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Tewes and son of Waukegan, Ill., visited Appleton friends Wednesday.

freshness

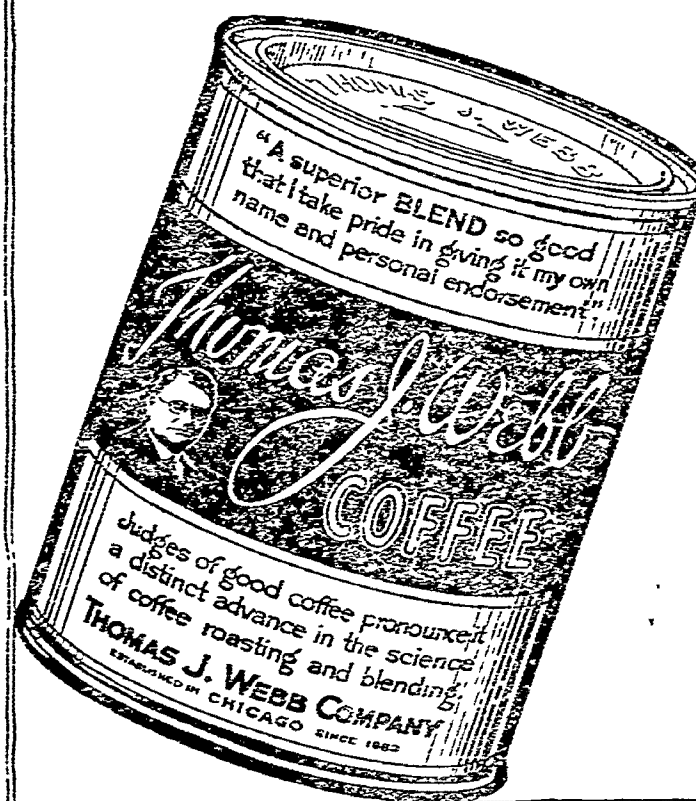

packed in air-tight Tin Containers

To keep it fresh for you

THE moment you open a tin of Thomas J. Webb Coffee, you can sense its delicious freshness. Direct from the "live flame" roaster to you, no moisture has reached it. No hand has touched it. Not a bit of air has seeped through its container to rob you of its precious freshness.

You don't have to transfer this coffee into an air-tight jar for fresh keeping. Its original tin container with its friction top cover affords complete protection. Protects the coffee on its way to you — protects it while you use it. That's why you can use it little by little and find the very last particle in the tin just as fresh and fragrant and flavor-filled as the first.

Because of this protected freshness, a pound of Thomas J. Webb Coffee goes further than a pound of ordinary coffee. Gives you many more cups of good coffee to the pound — costs you less per cup than coffees that sell for less on the pound.

Economy--Not in the Cheapest, But in The Best

True economy is often lost sight of in the search of lower price. Articles may be advertised as cheap — and often—very often they are cheap in quality, as well as price. No business can survive unless it obtains from all its merchandise, a fair, legitimate profit.

The Best Meats are the most economical meats. For a few cents difference in price, a good piece of meat, with no waste, every thing on it that is necessary to retain flavor and tenderness, is the most economical.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING BOLLOCK

Play copyrighted, 1922, in the United States and England. Novelized version by special permission of the author, and of Brennan's publishers of the play.

Here and there above the roofs and gables, eaves and steeples that are the skyscrapers of New York there towers an occasional church spire, a great, sensitive, kindly finger pointing to Heaven.

The church of the Nativity holds aloft just such a finger—but it rises from a snug, sleek, soft hand. An old house of New York's most fashionable club would feel quite at home in the Church of the Nativity. There is the same rich simplicity in both, the same warm comfort, and, above all, the same exclusiveness. But a threadbare man would be as self-conscious in one institution as in the other.

A feeling winter sun, homeward bound on Christmas eve, peered through stained glass windows upon a scene of disorder not in keeping with the primness it usually found in the rich shadows of these stately walls.

Crumpled paper, boxes and wood shavings were scattered everywhere. Bits of abandoned string scrawled strange figures on the floor.

Rising above this confusion towered a giant fir tree, decked with the lights and colors of an Aurora Borealis. Tinsel and trinkets weighted its boughs. A young girl poised on a step ladder, draped a strand of silver on already overloaded branches, then sat down awkwardly on one of the steps.

A woman, dressed too youthfully for her 40 years, and too tightly for her 150 pounds, turned slowly, surveying a dazzling ball held level with her eyes. As she faced the ladder she glimpsed other ornaments.

"Dilly," she reproved, "Dilly, for pity sake pull down your skirt." She turned to a third feminine figure bending over a box. "I don't know what skirts are coming to!"

"They're not coming to the ground, mother, you can be sure of that," Dilly rejoined, indignantly.

Dilly, otherwise Daffodil Gilliam, was pretty even before she learned that nature had adjoints sold in small round boxes. Twenty years old, she was 30 years witty, 40 years wise, 50 years worldly and 60 years cynical.

"I can't understand why our young women want to go around looking like chorus girls," Mrs. Gilliam complained irritably.

"Perhaps they've noticed the kind of men that marry chorus girls," Celia Thornbury remarked, looking up from a box of toys. At 30 Celia had left one marriage behind, carrying away court-ward spoils of war.

There was something feverish and restless in her eyes, something deliberately attractive in her manner.

"I've two engagements before dinner," said Mrs. Thornbury, finally. "And I've got to go home and undress for the opera."

"I gave up the dance for this," boasted Dilly.

"But you all waste your time so dreadfully," objected Mrs. Gilliam. "I'm busy, too, but my life is given to the service of others."

"What could be sweeter," her daughter mocked.

"Dilly! Nobody knows better than you that I've never had a selfish thought, Mr. Gilliam."

"Of the Gilliam Groceries, Inc.," interjected the girl.

"Mr. Gilliam says I'm far too good! Only yesterday I gave 500 pounds of coffee and sugar to the Salvation Army."

"And today," interrupted the formidable Dilly, "father jumped the price of sugar to 32 cents."

Mrs. Gilliam saw the futility of further argument.

"One gets precious little reward, I can tell you," she said with rising emotion. "I sent helpful thoughts from the Bible to all Mr. Gilliam's employees! Now they're on strike, and the man that got 'Be content with your wages' is leading the strikers."

She rummaged in the toy box to conceal her agitation.

"Where's the Star of Bethlehem?" she asked absently.

"It doesn't work, mother," explained Dilly.

"Are those your husband's men on the front steps?" Mrs. Thornbury asked after a moment's pause.

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Gilliam. "These are people from the sweat shops. They're starving, I hear, and Mr. Gilliam says it serves 'em right." By this time she had found the object of her search—a large brilliant star-shaped ornament. "What's the manner with the Star of Bethlehem?" she inquired.

"Oh, the usual," said Dilly. "Who ever heard of the lights working on a Christmas tree?"

"But this must work," Mrs. Gilliam declared firmly. "Mrs. Tice had it made to order—of Parisian diamonds. It cost $300."

"All right, it's better than nothing," said Dilly, taking it from her mother and clambering up the shiny ladder.

"Well, I'm half dead and there can't be any more presents," groaned Mrs. Thornbury, reaching for her wrap. "I'd give my left hand for a cigarette."

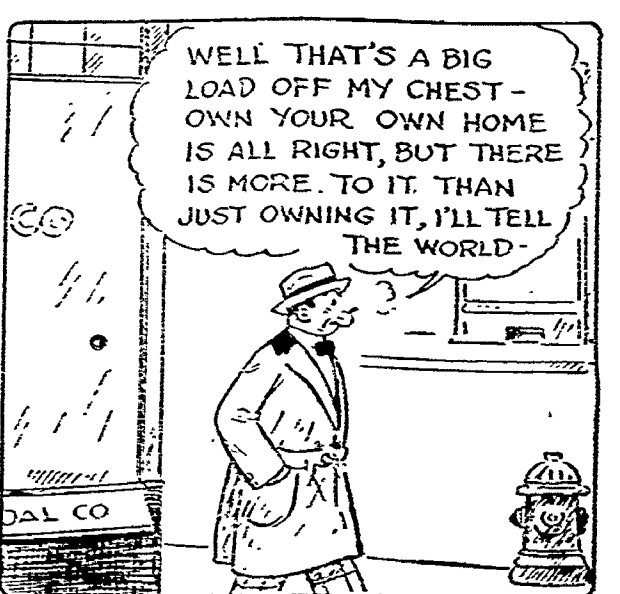

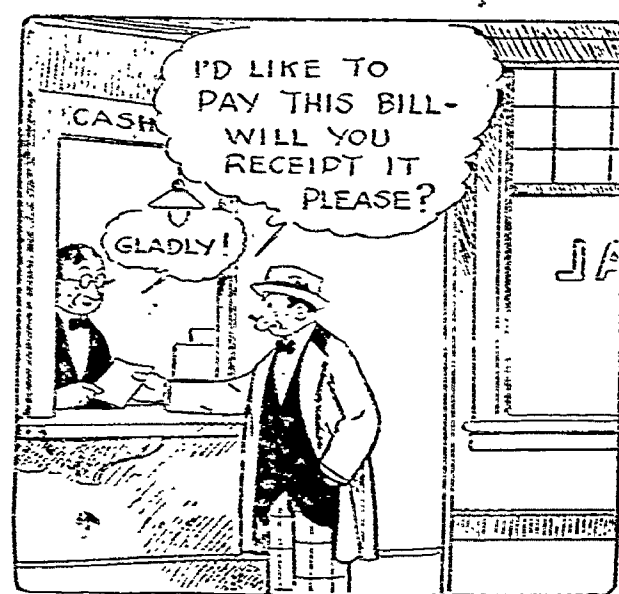

"Not here!" exclaimed Mrs. Gilliam a bit shocked.

"Why not? We've had almost everything else."

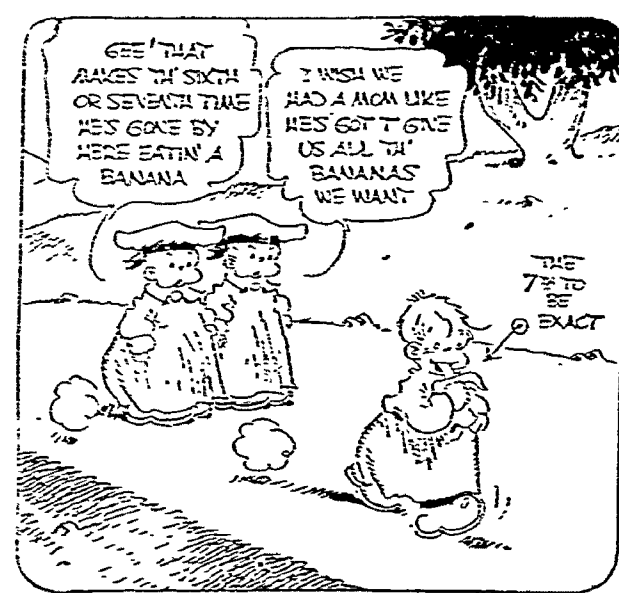

"Mother's so mid-Victorian minded, they've got to do something to make church-going attractive. What do we get out of it now? I've heard of preachers who go in for dances and movies and they say 'Who wouldn't go to church to see a squint at Douglas Fairbanks?'"

She clambered down the ladder, having hung the star at the top of the tree. Light from an opening door drew attention to a small, bent, rouselike man, a grayed creature who bowed his way apologetically, his arms filled with bundles.

APPLETON HIGH ELEVEN TO BATTLE AT MARINETTE

Hard Work Gives Coach Wilson's String Good Chance To Beat Champs

Local Gridmen Are Unspoiled By Clean Slate This Year And Go Into Contest Ready To Fight

Since the beginning of the football season when Coach David Wilson took over a crew of entirely inexperienced grid aspirants at Appleton High School to coach them through the rigors of the game, he has developed his string into a team which Saturday probably will give Marinette the hardest rub that eleven has experienced this year. In 1922 Marinette shut out the locals, 20 to 0, owing chiefly to overconfidence on the part of the Appleton players. This year, Coach Wilson has kept his men at work, drilling them for hours every afternoon. The men realize their inexperience and will be fighting without a letup throughout the game. They know that Marinette probably has the strongest aggregation in the High School conference and will need watchfulness to avoid defeat.

MARINETTE IS UNBEATEN
Coach Tom Johnson's first string has been walking away with all the games played this year and is steering for the championship, according to Marinette fans. Captain Lund at right half and Joe Kresky at fullback are the backbone of the eleven. In last Saturday's contest with East Green Bay, these two were chiefly responsible for the decisive defeat of that squad. Lund's specialty appears to be end runs, while Kresky is said to possess an almost phenomenal knack of slipping through the hostile line to block spurs and passers. Saturday also started the ball through the Green Bay defense for several big gains. Kresky at quarter is an experienced man and easily has the jump on Bowby in generalship. However, the local boys are determined to keep their record unblemished, and in spite of their handicap in experience and weight will put up a good fight.

They leave for Marinette Saturday at 8:30 by train and will return that same evening. Coach Wilson plans on taking seven or eight substitutes, with the regulars, among them Gelpke, a new man who has been trying out at halfback. Gelpke is light but fast and full of fight and promises to make good on the first string.

The probable lineups Saturday at Marinette will be:
Appleton: R. E. Courtney, R. T. Seena, R. G. Schaefer, C. Uebelacker, L. G. Kline, L. T. Fountain, L. E. Hillman, Q. G. Bowby.
Marinette: W. L. Wolf, R. E. Cox, R. T. Kronquist, S. Kresky, C. Machsen, L. G. Johnson, L. T. Parent, H. B. Kuchenberg, Q. B. Voigtmann, R. H. McKee, L. H. Bluer, J. Kresky, F. B. Stammet.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Beloit High is beginning to have visions of a state championship. The victory over Kenosha started a lot of talk down in Fairyland. However, the Beloiters are still far behind the band wagon when compared with Racine, Sheboygan, La Crosse, Marinette and some of the other claimants.

Appleton will invade Marinette. This is another contest bringing together eleven with clean records. The College City aggregation is bumping into a tough job as Coach Johnson's Northerners are a lanky gang of pickin' chasers and they have displayed a brilliant attack this season.

Shawano High is scheduled to play in Green Bay against East at the Packers' field. Shawano has been showing greatly improved form since the opening game reversal at Marinette and they should give a good account of themselves in the argument with Coach Wiley's Hilltoppers.

Elmer Sanders, who has wrestled around the valley quite often, gave Edward (Strangler) Lewis quite an argument the other night on a Wausau mat. Sanders stuck over an hour before the heavyweight champion got the first fall but succumbed in 15 minutes for the second flop.

St. Norbert's eleven is resting on its oars this week end. The collegian aggregation is finding it very difficult to secure games as teams in its class appear to be a bit gun shy. Coach Carey has been burning up the wires trying to plug the three open dates in its outline.

Dickenson, the Janesville product, who with a first team berth at Carroll college in his freshman year will be out of the game for the rest of the season as result of an injury received while playing against Marquette. His leg was fractured during a scrimmage.

The standing of the teams in the Valley conference football race is as follows:

Team	W	L	T	Pct.
Shelbygan	2	0	0	1.000
Appleton	2	0	1	1.000
E. Green Bay	0	1	0	.000
W. Green Bay	0	1	0	.000
Chesham	0	1	0	.000
Fond du Lac	0	1	0	.000
Manitowoc	0	2	0	.000

GOPHER THROWS CROWD MADISON FOR HOMECOMING

Minnesota Coach Expects Most Difficult Game Of Year Against Badgers

Minneapolis—More than 2,000 students and alumni of the University of Minnesota were arriving in Madison Friday to witness what they hoped would be the spoliation of Wisconsin's homecoming by the Gopher grid stars Saturday afternoon.

Augmented by the large student body and band, which traveled in a special train, the Minnesota football squad left Minneapolis Thursday night and arrived in the Wisconsin city Friday. In addition, hundreds of alumni from all sections of the state, motored to Madison and were depositing themselves there during the day, awaiting the game Saturday for which reservations were made through the Gopher institution here.

Knowing that his men will be up against the strongest competition so far this year, Coach Bill Spaulding was prepared to throw the team's composite strength into the contest Saturday. Wisconsin's overwhelming victory over Indiana last Saturday prompting him to use his highest caliber men.

PASSES WILL BE USED
Minnesota's forward passing, which to date has been a negligible quantity, will be brought into play more frequently with the Badgers Saturday, as Captain Earl Martineau's passing hand has almost fully recovered from the injury which put it out of commission for this task.

The Badgers will also be given large doses of line smashes and plunges by Lidsberg at halfback, and either Peterson or Oster at full, while Graham at quarter, together with Martineau, will dash out many times of end runs and broken field running, if the chances merit.

Edmund Merrill will begin at the endposts, and Gay and Abenson will be found guarding the line. Louis Gross, the regular starry tackle who has been playing his position superbly, but whose broken thumb kept him out of last Saturday's game, will be ready to stop the Wisconsin backs. McDonald will be at the other tackle position. Cooper and Roloff may both be called upon to work in the pivot position.

In Swanbeck, Gury, Furst and possibly Gross, Coach Spaulding has a substitute backfield which may be high in ability. Also the shiftness of the regular men so that rearrangement of positions works to no disadvantage to the team, is a favorable factor.

PACKERS ALL SET FOR RACINE GAME
Former Princeton Star End Joins Lineup Of Green Bay Pro Squad

BY JACK ROBERTS
Sport Editor, Racine Journal-News.
Racine—The Horlick-Legion squad of this city will journey to Green Bay on Sunday in company with about 200 ardent fans for the purpose of assisting the state which they lost to the Packers on a neutral field in Madison last December by a score of 14 to 0.

The Legionnaires are having some bad breaks just at present but it is confidently believed that the squad can be whipped into shape to kick the strong Packers. Manager Ruetz announced on Wednesday that Captain Irving Langhoff, one of the most consistent ground gainers on the team, would be out for the remainder of the season with a broken leg and that John Rogers, star right end, would also be laid up some time because of a torn ligament in his left leg.

With Langhoff and Rogers out of the regular lineup, Manager Ruetz has been forced to fill in their places. Just when things were looking gloomy for the Legionnaires a telegram was received from Charles Dressen, last year's quarterback, saying he would report Wednesday, and be in shape for the Packers' game.

Jack (Dolly) Gray, the famous Princeton end, who made three touchdowns against Chicago last year, in the much-talked of intercollegiate game, has joined the Green Bay Packers and will be in uniform here Sunday against Racine.

Gray played end with St. Louis against the Packers several weeks ago and he gave a tang up exhibition of football. He is the scrappy kind of a player who will fit in perfectly with the Pack machine. He is a perfect receiver of the forward pass and a brilliant defense player.

The newest addition to the Pack squad played three years at Princeton and Bill Roper, the Tiger coach, credited him with being one of the greatest ends that ever wore the orange and black.

DR. ROBERT C. ZUPPKE
Football Coach, University of Illinois, Author of "Football Technique and Tactics"

If a coach is fortunate enough to have two men who can throw, he may devise a game plan for the purpose of employing both in such a way as to deceive the defense and to destroy their intended concentration on the one individual.

For example, one thrower can line up somewhere six yards back of the center, while the other lines up from ten to twelve yards directly back of the center.

Since the center pass to one or the other for the purpose of throwing a pass, the defense, although knowing a forward pass is contemplated, cannot concentrate on one man, and this produces hesitation, which assures the thrower more time in executing the pass.

No. 1 back may throw a pass from point A or may bluff and make a backward or lateral pass to No. 2 back, who may throw or run as opportunity permits.

Let me add this caution: Special crutches should be placed on the protection of the play. The men protecting the thrower should immediately be alert to the possibilities of interception of the throw, and the thrower should immediately free himself from the opponent about him. One or two feet in front should be coached to run back and deep from the scrimmage line after they have blocked an opponent's lineman a sufficient length of time, rather than follow the ball down the field. If these men follow instructions, an opponent intercepting the pass will find it difficult to get very far.

This concludes the series of ten plays. I shall be very glad if I have been able to be of even slight assistance to the young players of the United States.

LAWRENCE SQUAD IS CRIPPLED BUT EAGER FOR BATTLE
Injuries Necessitate Shifts In Blue And White Lineup On Eve Of Game

Weakened by injuries and desertions, the Lawrence football squad is nevertheless going to battle Friday afternoon against the strong Cornell eleven determined to win. Still, the big tackle, who with injuries related to the Beloit game and is being replaced by Kessling who was drafted from his position as guard. Packard is taking Kessling's place, while Gander has been working out in Lawrence's place at center. La Rue has a rib broken and received other minor injuries in Saturday's game and will be out for several weeks. Coach Buck had planned on putting Geon at half, but a wrenched tendon necessitates his being kept out of the game. He has been working out on a sardon several weeks ago in one leg, and hardly recovered from that when the same thing happened to his other leg. Christoff is taking Holmes' place as end, Holmes having quit the team for the rest of the season.

Grignon has been working out as fullback for the past week and looks promising in that position. Despite an injured foot which bothers him a great deal, he is in the battle every minute and may be depended upon to score a touchdown in the line. Buckle has been fully recovered from the injury to his arm which hampered him somewhat in the battle last Saturday, which gives him a chance to get into the game with his oldtime smashing tactics. Koral is on the job as usual. He and Cooke, the lanky end, have developed an aerial attack which should be a puzzle for the Cornell men and is sure to gain considerable ground for the Blue and White.

YOST WILL TRY OUT SUBS IN AGGIE GAME
Ann Arbor, Mich.—The customary early last practice before the game Saturday with the Michigan Aggies was held by Michigan today. Defensive work against Aggie formations and individual instruction in finer football points have formed the basis of the week's workout of the Yost men.

Few changes in the lineup are expected Saturday, but in the final hour Coach Yost hopes to bring many substitutes into play. If any shifts are to be made in the Iowa game next week, they will undoubtedly be worked out in the Aggie game Saturday.

The Aggie eleven is rated stronger this year than previously and this may force the Michigan squad to work harder than is anticipated, with the result that they may have to uncover new plays which are being held in reserve for Iowa, or prevent the working out of as many second string men as hoped.

LAWRENCE TENNIS STARS UPSET DOPE AND BEAT NEENAH

Valley Champions Lose All But One Singles Match To College Netmen

Lawrence upset the tennis dope bucket Thursday afternoon by defeating the Neenah Fox River valley champions in three out of four matches played on the Y. M. C. A. courts here.

In the first match, Lee started by defeating Sundt of Neenah, 6-9 in the initial set. However, Sundt came back in the second and third sets and won the match after a hard fight in which he came out victor, 8-6 and 6-4.

Chappelle, one of Neenah's best, gave Hollis a hard rub, but lost the two first sets, 6-4 and 8-6, in the second and final singles match.

In the doubles, Heiferman and Nesbit, probably the two best players of the local college, humbled Brown and Sizor, 6-3, in the opening set. The Neenah team recovered somewhat in the second and put up a hard fight, which they won 13-11. The Lawrence men proved themselves better players in the final set and came off with another 6-3 win.

This probably will be the last match of the season.

Perch Bite On Peanuts If On Nothing Else
Milwaukee—Gustave Sorenson, 63, veteran of the Isaac Walton pastime, has discovered that peanuts are a first class bait for perch.

The old fisherman relates how one afternoon, he with many other persons, had fished on the government pier at Milwaukee for three hours without any of them getting a single strike when suddenly the cry of an urchin vendor "fresh, roasted peanuts" echoed in his ears.

Sorenson purchased a bag of peanuts and baited his hook with some of the contents.

"The fish went all squirrelly," says Gus, "for in no time, I had me fill of perch and then some."

Sorenson then told how the luckless fishermen near him gathered around trying to pry from him his secret.

"I said nothing," chuckled the old man, "but munched the last of the peanuts, for I, too, am fond of them."

Chicago—Rumors that Rogers Hornsby, batting champion of the National league, would be traded in a deal involving the transfer of four players to the St. Louis Cardinals, were denied by officials of the St. Louis club, who stated Hornsby was neither for trade nor for sale.

New York—The executive committee of the American Olympic committee voted to hold the final track and field contest to determine the make-up of the American Olympic team at the Harvard stadium beginning June 14.

Michigan Aggies Saturday in a practice game that is not expected to be a test of the Michigan team's strength.

KAWS COP TITLE IN LITTLE SERIES BY BEATING BIRDS, 5-2

Valley Champions Lose All But One Singles Match To College Netmen

Baltimore—The Kansas City Blues are sitting atop the minor league baseball world Friday.

They clinched their way to victory over the champion Baltimore Orioles in the ninth and deciding game of the little world series at Oriole park Thursday afternoon. The score was 5 to 2.

Two home runs, one by Stiff in the third inning with Brannon on second, and another by Brief in the ninth inning with Becker on first won the minor league championship for the American association pennant winners.

Lefty Schupp, hurling for the Blues, mystified the Birds with a sweeping curve that stopped at or Baltimore's left hand hitters. Lefty Groves was Baltimore's choice to start the game, but he was ranked in the first inning after he had walked three men and allowed a single. He forced in the first man with a pass, and Manager Dunn of the Orioles rushed in Parnham.

The big right hander was very effective in all except the fourth and ninth innings, when the clouds out of the park settled his fate. Walsh, Malachuk, Lawry and Schupp made the hits that figured in Baltimore's run.

3.103 SEE FINAL TIF
The attendance on Thursday was 3,103; net receipts $4,155.50. The total attendance at the nine games was $4,705, and the total net receipts were $105,619.38.

The players, who share in the first five games only, will divide between $55,000 and $60,000. The exact amount it was understood, would be announced on Friday by Commissioners Hickey and Toole.

LUTHERAN TEAM NO. 2 WINS WOMEN'S MATCH
Team No. 2, captained by Miss Selma Gruett, defeated team No. 4, Miss Martha Lueckel, captain, in a series of games of the Ladies league of the Lutheran Bowling club Wednesday evening at the club alleys in Lawrenceburg. The score was 1,524 to 1,583. These were the first games followed by these two teams in the fall series. Miss Minnie Sontkowski of the winning five rolled the highest individual score, 163.

The complete scores were as follows:
Number 4: Martha Lueckel 106 128 112 348

SHADE WILL CLAIM CROWN IF HE BEATS WILLY WELLS
By Associated Press
New York—If Dave Shade beats Willy Wells, British fighter, in their 15 round bout at Madison Square garden Friday night, he will lay claim to the welterweight championship and defend it against all comers, his manager, Leo Flynn announced Thursday night.

Wells has been offered a bout with Roland Todd, English welterweight, if he wins Friday night. Wells and Shade meet for the first time and it will be Wells' first appearance in America.

Ehmke, Jones Are Stars Of 1923 Season

By Associated Press
New York—Though subjected to heavy bombardments from batmen during the 1923 season, pinchers in both major leagues recorded an unusual list of brilliant performances.

Two no-hit games, an array of one hit and two hit performances and new strikeout records were turned in by National and American league moundmen.

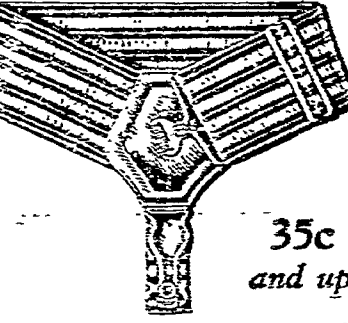

Sad Sam Jones of the world champion Yankees, and Howard Ehmke of the Boston Red Sox accounted for the most spectacular box work of the season. Within a single week in September both blanked the Philadelphia Athletics without a hit or a run, 19 men facing Jones, while 25 stepped to the plate against Ehmke. Then, in their next turns on the mound, both came close to duplicating their hitless performances, Jones holding the Red Sox to two hits while Ehmke gave the Yankees one single.

New York—Young Jake Schaffee who is finishing his training in Chicago will arrive here Sunday to try to regain the world's 152 lb. belt. The belt championship now held by Willy Hope in the third international tournament which opens on Monday night at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Chicago—The American league has set aside a fund of $25,000 for relief of veteran players. President Ben Johnson announced.
